Hoover's Visit To New York City On Next Monday

Will Be Less Strenuous Than Previous Campaign Tours. Street Processions Have Been Eliminated As Have Rear Platform Speeches.

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP).—The final thrust Herbert Hoover is to make into eastern territory—his visit to New York city next Monday—is to be much less strenuous than the campaign tours he has made during the last month.

Street processions and long automobile touring through crowds, which formed a large part of his activities on his journey to Newark, Elizabethton and Boston, have been eliminated from the program of his trip to the home town of his Democratic opponent, as have rear platform speeches and overnight train rides.

The Republican presidential candidate will leave here Sunday afternoon, arriving in New York in time to have a good night's rest at his hotel, to which he will drive from the Pennsylvania Railroad station. He will be welcomed to the metropolis by Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman for New York; H. Edmund Machold, state chairman, and other leaders.

Under present plans all of Monday will be spent at the hotel. Some party leaders will be guests of the candidate at breakfast. Later during the forenoon, Hoover will receive delegations from various foreign groups and probably will make brief talks to them.

The nominee will speak again at the hotel luncheon which will be given for state and county chairmen and officers of the various independent Hoover-Curtis committees which have been organized in New York. Several hundred will attend this luncheon and the candidate is expected to advise them to redouble their energies in the fight to capture Governor Smith's home state for the Republican National ticket.

National Hookup for Speech.

During the afternoon, the nominee will receive Republican service men who have been promoting his candidacy and later will rest in his suite before dinner and the speech he is to deliver at Madison Square Garden that night. Vice President Charles G. Dawes also is to speak on the same program, which will be carried to the country over a nationwide radio hookup.

Hoover will spend Monday night in New York and return to Washington Tuesday afternoon to conduct a "front porch" campaign at his headquarters here during the week intervening before he starts on his last campaign trip which will take him to his California home where he will vote.

Since the New York address, which now practically is completed, will be the last in the east, Hoover is expected to make a general summing up of his position on the various issues which he talked about and also to deal more fully with some questions which perhaps are closer to the people of New York city than to those elsewhere.

While Hoover planned to spend much of his time today at his home, he had engagements to meet a number of visitors at his headquarters, these including Dr. Hugo Eckener and three of those who accompanied him across the Atlantic in the Graf Zeppelin.

Governor Pardons Dry League Head

Indianapolis, Oct. 19 (AP).—Governor Ed Jackson today issued a pardon for Dr. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, who this morning was taken to the state penal farm to begin serving a sixty-day sentence for contempt of the Indiana Supreme court.

The pardon was issued before Dr. Shumaker had reached the state farm at Putnamville. It was given, according to Pliny Wolford, secretary to the governor, because the governor believed the penalty "excessive".

Dr. Shumaker, however, will have to pay the $250 fine assessed by the Supreme court in addition to the 60 days' sentence.

The head of the dry league in Indiana was found guilty nearly two years ago of contempt of the Supreme court for statements contained in the annual report of the league. The report criticized the decisions of members of the court in certain liquor cases.

Shumaker sought for more than two years to escape serving the sentence, but yesterday abandoned his fight.

Arthur L. Gilliom, attorney general, said he had no official knowledge that Governor Jackson had issued a pardon for Superintendent Shumaker but that if such was the case, the state would take steps to have the judgment executed.

"The governor has no power to pardon for contempt of the Supreme court," Gilliom declared.

He refused to discuss the case further.

Gypsies Ousted From Catskill.

Several bands of gypsies were escorted out of the village of Catskill this week by the police force. When ordered out of town the nomads were ready to pitch their tents. They protested the action of the police, saying that they needed rest, but were kept moving by town officials along their route.

Revolt Against Smith in Alabama

Anti-Smith Democrats Fervently Enlisted In Hoover Cause—Religious Issue and Race Supremacy Rock Electorate With Dissension.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 19 (AP).—Among the souvenirs bequeathed to history by this campaign, none is more certain of a place in the political curiosity shop than the situation which has come to pass here in Alabama.

Other states of the solid south have likewise felt the shock of the revolt from Smith, but nowhere else has it assumed a character so strangely in contrait to tradition. In these latter days of the campaign is still rocks an electorate fired with dissention over such issues as religious and white supremacy, and although the Smith supporters say the tide has turned and the state is safe, their opponents do not concede it.

Not only have the anti-Smith Democrats of Alabama fervently enlisted in the Hoover cause but to a large degree they have taken possession of it. By agreement they have substituted their own candidates for electors—dissenting Democrats—on the ballot under the Republican emblem. The list includes one delegate to the Houston convention and the wife of another. A former member of the Democratic state committee presides over the fortunes of anti-Smith headquarters.

Smith Supporters Avoid Taking Stump

Senator Heflin goes up and down the state denouncing Smith and the "Roman Catholic political machine." His colleague, Senator Black, has endorsed the ticket, and so has Governor Graves, a former official of the Klan; but neither Black nor Graves has taken the stump in the rattling oratorial onslaught with which the Smith Democrats are seeking to clear their sallents of the enemy.

And all of this is taking place, not in North Carolina or Florida, with their considerable blocks of Republican influence, but in a state so wedded to Democratic doctrine and tradition that for fifty years the Republican party here has been little more than a name.

Religious Issue Placed First

Under the lead of Senator Heflin and others, Alabama has handled the religious issues without gloves. Those who oppose the election of a Catholic to the Presidency do not whisper here; their campaign is a shouting campaign. For months now the Rev. "Bob" Jones, an Evangelist, has been pleading with the voters in public speeches not to put a Catholic into the White House. The Democratic state chairman, E. W. Pettus, places religion first among the issues on which Smith is opposed in Alabama.

Blame for injection of the religious question into the campaign is laid at the door of the Smith supporters by Oliver Street, the Republican national committeeman, who conceeds that "membership of Al Smith in the Catholic Church has become a very live issue in this state." Street says that the Smith people broached the subject by saying that those who opposed their candidate were really actuated by religion, and that they thus started a fire which they now are seeking to extinguish.

Literature on Race Question.

Nor is the race question discussed with less directness. From a Democratic standpoint, Chairman Pettus lists white supremacy as the outstanding issue. A campaign textbook put out by the anti-Smith organization refers to Smith as "the negro's candidate" and says "eight negro papers out of every ten in the United States are supporting him. Al has never disappointed the negro. He gives him preference over the white man."

A poster circulated by the state Democratic campaign committee says that Alabama's "negro legislature" of 1872 "was made possible by Federal bayonets" under a Republican administration and that "if Herbert Hoover carries Alabama in 1928, we will have negroes in the next legislature of Alabama."

Minimize Hoover Victory.

Despite the defections, the Smith supporters now have taken up the battle with much determination. For the first time in many years, the Democratic organization is conducting a state-wide campaign on a major scale. The Democratic congressmen form an important coterie in the leadership of this campaign, and Representative Oliver is its chairman. Democratic leaders minimize the possibility of a Hoover victory in the state, and say that except for Senator Heflin, not a single incumbent of a state elective office is out against the party ticket.

It is agreed everywhere that nothing since reconstruction days has stirred Alabama so deeply as this campaign. However, much of a conflagration there may prove to be in Democratic ranks on election day, there certainly is a great deal of smoke just now.

DEFENDS K. OF C., IS HIT WITH GLASS WATER PITCHER.

Brooksfield, Fla., Oct. 19 (AP).—When Leon Whitehurst arose to defend the Knights of Columbus at an anti-Smith political meeting here last night he was struck with a glass water pitcher alleged to have been hurled by former Mayor H. S. Simmons. He was only slightly injured.

Whitehurst arose after the Rev. I. N. Aldrich, who conducted the meeting, had invited expressions from the audience.

18 Perished in Attempts to Cross Atlantic by Air

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Prior to Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald's flight eighteen persons had lost their lives in attempts to cross the Atlantic ocean by air. They were:

Captain St. Roman, a French officer, and Commander Mouneyres, started rfom St. Louis, Senegal, May 5, 1927, for Buenos Aires and never heard from again.

Captain Charles Nungesser and Major Francois Coli, French, lost their lives trying to fly from France to America the same month.

On August 31, 1927, Captain Leslie Hamilton, Colonel Frederick F. Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim took off from Upavon, England, in the St. Raphael for Ottawa and disappeared.

Lloyd W. Bertaud, James Hill and Philip Payne, Americans, perished when they flew from Old Orchard, Me., on September 6, 1927, in an attempt to reach Rome.

Captain Terry Tully and Lieutenant James Medcalf were lost after leaving London, Ont., September 7, 1927, for London, England.

Captain Walter Hinchliffe and the Honorable Elsie Mackay vanished after leaving England on a trans-Atlantic flight on March 13, 1928.

Mrs. Frances Grayson in "The Dawn" left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., with three companions — Oskar Omdal, Brice Boldsborough and Fred Koehler—for a flight to Newfoundland enroute across the Atlantic and were lost.

Protest Against Race Question

Southern Leaders Deplore Raising of Question for Which They Place Responsibility on Partisans of Both Parties.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19 (AP).—University presidents, ministers, business leaders and others prominent in the life of the south joined today in voicing protest against "injection of the race question into the present political campaign."

In a statement bearing the signatures of 45 men and women it was asserted that the declaration was intended to be entirely non-partisan, and added that the race issue had been raised "by partisans of both sides, who for the purpose of driving voters into their respective camps, are, in our judgment, reopening the healing wounds of bitterness and hate."

"The undersigned citizens of the south, some of them supporters of the one presidential candidate and some of the other, desire unitedly to voice this public protest against the injection of the race question into the present political campaign.

"Had either political group alone been responsible for raising this subject we would hesitate to make this statement, lest it be thought partisan. But it is being raised by partisans of both sides, who, for the purpose of driving voters into their respective camps, are, in our judgment, reopening the healing wounds of bitterness and hate.

"We believe these appeals are both irrelevant and dangerous, it is our hope that no one will be deterred by them from calmly considering the real issue and voting his honest convictions; and certainly that no one will allow them to inflame his mind with antagonism toward our negro neighbors, who too long have been pawns in the game of politics. Any attempt to influence men and women with an issue so untimely is unworthy of the white man and unjust to all. If taken seriously it is the sowing of dragon's teeth of which future generations must reap the harvest.

"Happily we believe it will not be taken seriously. We believe our citizenship is too intelligent and too fair-minded thus to sacrifice the cause of interracial peace and progress. We therefore call upon the leadership of the south—the pulpit, the press, the platform—and upon every right-thinking man and woman among us to disclaim, discourage and discountenance such appeals to prejudice and fear, to the end that the gains of recent years in interracial goodwill and understanding may not be sacrificed to the passing interests of a political campaign."

Register Today Or Saturday

Today and Saturday are the last two days of registration for the fall election in Kingston. The polls close tonight at 10 o'clock. Saturday morning the polls will open at 7 o'clock and remain open until 10 o'clock that evening. Don't fail to register or you will lose your vote at the November election.

Two Fires Thursday.

Thursday afternoon the fire department was called out on a still alarm of fire for some paper boxes on fire in a vacant lot adjoining the residence of George W. Cole on Farrelly street. There was no damage. Later the fire department responded to a still alarm for a fire in the Sterling street dump.

Banker Killed In Plane Crash

Frightened Passenger Who Gripped Controls Blamed For Mishap—Others On Sightseeing Trip Seriously Injured.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 19 (AP).—A frightened passenger who gripped the controls of an airplane in which he and several other prominent bankers were making a sightseeing trip over Atlantic City was believed responsible today for the crash of the plane and the death of one of the bankers and the serious injury of the others of the party.

W. Octave Chanute, Denver investment banker, died in the Atlantic City Hospital two hours after the accident. Mr. Chanute and four of the other passengers were delegates to the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association here.

The injured are:

Pliny Jewel, vice president of Coffin and Burr, Inc., Boston, and former president of the association; fractured skull; condition critical.

Thomas Dysart, president Knight, Dysart and Gamble, St. Louis, also a former president of the association; broken ribs, internal injuries and broken left wrist; condition critical.

Henry L. Duer, of W. W. Lanahan and Company, Baltimore; shock and minor injuries.

Alden H. Little, of Chicago, executive vice president of the association; cuts and bruises.

Ralph Somers of Absecon, N. J.; internal injuries and shock.

George King, of Garden City, L. I., pilot; possible fracture of the right leg and shock.

Ferdinand Eble of Pleasantville, N. J., relief pilot; possible fracture of the right leg and shock.

Crash Follows Tail Spins.

The plane, a sister ship of the trans-Atlantic Junkers plane Bremen, was returning to the field after a flight over the city. Watchers on the ground saw it go into a tail spin when approximately 2,000 feet in the air, right itself, go into another spin and crash to the ground.

The charge that someone had "frozen" to the controls, making it impossible for him to straighten the plane out when it went into the spin was made by King, the pilot.

While being carried unconscious to the hospital he cried out, "get away from those controls," and later after regaining consciousness told Walter Allen, manager of the Crescent Air Service, that someone had climbed into the other cockpit "jammed the foot control and froze the rudder."

Attendants at the hospital said that Mr. Jewel in his delirium also murmured "Oh, leave go of those controls."

When the plane took off all the passengers were in the cabin witnesses said, but after the crash one of them was taken from the second cockpit. His identity was not established.

Missing Girls At Poughkeepsie

Anna Krostek and Louise Dohnken, for Whom Police Were Asked to Search, Taken From Train in That City.

Wednesday night the police department were requested to locate Anna Krostek, 15, of 30 East Pierpoint street and Louise Dohnken, 14, of 90 Broadway, who were missing from home. It was thought that the girls were plentifully supplied with cash for Mr. Krostek, father of one of the girls, found that his savings amounting to $210 were missing from the trunk in which he kept the money.

This morning the police department were tipped off that the two girls had been seen at the New York Central railroad station at Rhinecliff. Officer Hess was assigned to the case and crossed the Hudson river in a motorboat but arrived two minutes after the train for Poughkeepsie had pulled out of the station.

Word was immediately telephoned to the Poughkeepsie police and the two girls, who had purchased tickets for Poughkeepsie at the Rhinecliff station, were taken in custody.

The Poughkeepsie police department immediately notified the Kingston department that the girls were being held awaiting the arrival of authorities from this city. Sergeant James V. Simpson and Officer Simon Wood later in the morning motored to Poughkeepsie after the two girls to bring them back to Kingston.

EDELHAUSEN INJURED IN FALL FROM ROOF OF HOME

Charles Edelhausen while at work on the roof of his house at 229 Tremper avenue lost his footing shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and fell to the ground. The city ambulance was called and removed him to the City of Kingston Hospital where it was found he had sustained a bad cut in the head and a fracture of the right wrist. An X-ray will be taken of the head injury at the hospital.

Boy Burned in Bonfire.

The four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gulnack of Livingston street, Saugerties, was severely burned by accidently falling into a bonfire. Dr. Krom was called and found the right side of the child was burned to the muscles.

Cremated Body of Air Mail Pilot Found in Woods

Polk, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—The burned plane and cremated body of Air Mail Pilot William C. Hopson was found three miles southwest of here early today by searchers who sought out the plane after having received reports of flares having been dropped early yesterday.

Hopson was flying the mail route between New York and Cleveland. He was due to arrive in the Ohio city at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Yesterday residents of this town reported that at 2 a. m. they saw the plane traveling westward and that a bright light burst from the ship as it passed beyond a hill. The light was believed to be a flare.

Hopson was out of the dangerous Pennsylvania mountain region when he crashed. He passed over Clarion, about 30 miles east of here, almost on schedule time.

The burned plane and the pilot's body were found by ground searchers after daylight this morning. Planes from Clarion and W. L. Smith, superintendent of the air mail route, flying from Cleveland, traversed the region between Clarion and Cleveland yesterday without finding any trace of the missing pilot.

Hopson's body was found in a small patch of woods. Soon after it was found a guard was placed about the fallen plane and its pilot. No attempt was made to remove Hopson's body from the debris. It was presumed that it would not be removed until officials of the air mail had inspected the wreckage.

Mrs. MacDonald Is Still Hopeful

After Another Night of Anxious Vigil Airman's Wife Still Clings to Slight Possibilities as Hopes.

London, Oct. 19 (AP).—Flares that had burned all night at Croydon and other airdromes to guide Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald to a safe landing were extinguished at dawn today and hope that he had survived went out of the hearts of many. It was the general belief that he had become the nineteenth victim in the effort to fly the Atlantic.

At the most his tiny Moth plane in which he risked his life in an attempt to fly alone from Newfoundland could hold only enough gasoline for 35 hours of flying and the thirty-fifth hour passed at 3:51 a. m. (10:51 p. m. last night eastern standard time).

Airdrome officials were decidedly pessimistic regarding the airman's fate, saying that there were only two slight possibilities now—that he had alighted on some remote island off the west coast of Scotland or had been picked up by a ship unequipped with wireless.

Another night of anxious vigil was spent by the flier's wife and she still clung to slight possibilities as hopes.

Only once had Mac Donald been reported since he left Harbor Grace, N. F., Wednesday at 11:51 a. m., eastern standard time. The Dutch steamship Hardenberg reported sighting an airplane at 7:30 p. m., eastern standard time Wednesday far north of Mac Donald's course. The position given was 700 miles east and north of Harbor Grace and the airman had then 1,200 miles to fly to reach Ireland.

The message came after 25 hours of complete silence and Mrs. MacDonald voiced its ominous import when she remarked:

"That is a long time ago."

Generally conditions at sea had been regarded as favorable for MacDonald's flight. When the French liner Paris reached Plymouth this morning the captain said visibility had been good for thirty hours but that he had seen nothing of the plane. Yesterday morning when the airman's coming was awaited in Ireland the weather was unfavorable there.

Had he been forced down on the Atlantic by the failure of his motor or ice forming on the wings of the plane, it was thought that MacDonald would have been able to keep afloat not more than 20 minutes by partly empty gasoline tanks. He had no wireless and in that brief span of time could only send up flares in the slim hope that some vessel might come to his aid.

Little Boy Killed On Father's Barge

Henry Sebastian Straley, six-year-old son of Louis and Rose Klim Straley of this city, was killed Thursday on the barge Wakefield, captained by his father, at the foot of 76th street, Hoboken, when a barrel of lard fell on his head.

The little boy was playing tag with his sister, Rose, aged seven years, and ran into a stack of barrels. The big lard barrel slipped and fell upon the child before he was able to run from under it. He died almost instantly.

The remains will be brought to the home of Henry's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Straley, 196 Hasbrouck avenue, this evening. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Dr. J. G. O'Leary Dies at His Home

Well Known and Able Physician Succumbs, After Illness of Several Months—Had Been In Active Practice Since 1914.

Dr. John G. O'Leary, one of the outstanding physicians of Kingston and Ulster county, died shortly before noon today at his home on Fair street after a long illness. Dr. O'Leary celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday on September 1. He was a son of the late John and Catherine O'Leary of Canandaigua, N. Y., and was born at Shandaken.

Dr. O'Leary was taken ill with the "flu" last July, but had apparently recovered. Later he was again taken ill and spent three weeks in St. Vincent's Hospital in New York city, and the past six weeks at the Benedictine Hospital. He was removed to his home on Fair street several days ago.

He was graduate of the Georgetown University and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University where he was graduated in 1913. He was president of his class in his graduating year. After graduation he became a member of the staff of St. Vincent's Hospital, the Sloan Maternity Hospital and the Presbyterian Hospital in New York city. He located in Kingston in 1914 and began the practice of medicine.

Dr. O'Leary was highly successful in his work as a physician and surgeon and soon acquired a very large practice. He was a member of the staff of the Benedictine Hospital and of the courtesy staff of the City of Kingston Hospital.

Fraternally Dr. O'Leary was a member of the Fourth Degree Assembly, Knights of Columbus, Kingston Lodge of Elks, and president of the Kingston Academy of Medicine.

He is survived by his wife who before marriage was Miss Elizabeth Salley; one daughter, Miss Salley O'Leary; a sister, Mrs. P. M. Donovan, wife of Dr. Donovan of Canandaigua, and a cousin, Mrs. Mollie Husbands of Canandaigua.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

BISHOP SHIPMAN'S SPLENDID ADDRESS.

The one hundred and ten men who attended the chicken supper of the Men's Club at St. John's Church at the parish house on Albany avenue on Thursday night were privileged to hear one of the ablest and most inspiring talks possible from the Right Reverend Herbert Shipman, Bishop Suffragan of the New York Diocese, in addition to an evening of rare good fellowship. There was music by Bott's orchestra, plenty of singing by the men, and withall a fine chicken supper served by the ladies of the church.

In his address, touched with keen humor and simple pathos, Bishop Shipman so stressed the vivid need of the men of today cheerfully and efficiently assuming their responsibility as officers and members of their church, as Christians, followers of Jesus Christ, in the community as to make a deep impression upon all who heard him. Long chaplain of West Point Military Academy, Bishop Shipman is thoroughly a man's man and, as usual, speaks to men words not soon forgotten. W. R. Kraft acted as toastmaster. L. F. Searle is president of the St. John's Men's Club.

STEAMSHIP SIGHTS LIGHTS RESEMBLING EXPLOSION

Steamship Mirach, Oct. 19, (By radio to The Associated Press.)—The S. S. Mirach sighted at 11:30 p. m. Greenwich Meridian time Wednesday night (6:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time) at latitude 53:03 north, longitude 42:42 west in bearing 120 true at a big distance lights most probably resembling an explosion.

The position given by the Mirach is about 550 miles east of Belle Isle, Newfoundland, and along the course which Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald was flying when sighted by the Steamship Hardenberg at 7:30 p. m. Eastern Standard time Wednesday night 150 miles farther east. Since the Hardenberg reported that the airplane passed an hour later than the time given by the Mirach for sighting lights it seems improbably that the Mirach has evidence of a disaster to MacDonald's plane.

SHOT IN LEG WHILE ATTENDING TALKING MOVIES.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 19 (AP).—One thing about these talking movies, a person attending a theatre where such pictures are showing may get shot and no one may know of it.

Robert Lewis was shot in the leg last night when a pistol dropped from C. T. Baughn's pocket. The talking picture was full of gunfire, and one extra shot more or less passed unnoticed.

Lewis, with a bullet in his leg, hobbled from the theatre without the audience knowing he had been wounded.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP).—King Turkey, traditional Piece De Resistance of the Thanksgiving menu, will be an expensive bird to serve on the family table this year. Prices will be higher than usual, the prairie farmer advised today, due to a small crop.

Research Workers Are Poets of Today, Says Owen Young

Activity in Mind and Body Responsible for Remarkable Development, Reflecting Spirit of the Age—Physical Research Workers Appeal to the Imagination.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Workers in physical research were hailed as "the poets of today" by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, in an address at this morning's session of the fifth annual conference of the University of the State of New York.

Two periods which Mr. Young characterized as the most productive of any in our history, the one from 1575 to 1650, the other from 1875 to 1925, were contrasted.

"The combination of the imaginative qualities of the human intellect with the matter of fact production of goods or performance of service is an inspiration to both," he said. "This combination existed in the time of Elizabeth, just as it does today. It may account in some measure for the great things which happened then just as I believe it accounts for the things which happen now."

"Since 1875 our population has almost doubled, urban growth has trebled, and the wealth and prosperity of the people have enormously increased. New industries have sprung up, science and invention have provided new things and afforded new ways of spending unexpected wealth. The quiet of a generation ago has been succeeded by great restlessness. Everywhere there is activity in both mind and body. Young men and women flooded into our schools and colleges. They have called up in critical review, not only the fashions and customs of their fathers and mothers, but their very habits of thought. They refuse the old straight-jacket, and we call them unconventioned and daring. Good—they reflect the spirit of the age. Everywhere there is action, and not only action but speed. We rave over our roads, we fly through the air, we talk across continents, we throw the energy of Niagara and the mines hundreds of miles to the points we need it, and all these activities require daring and skill and nervous tension. It is life, not in repose, but in action."

New Things Demanded and Provided.

So it was, he said, in the time of Elizabeth. New things were demanded and provided. While "devotees to old customs might lament the new ways" in those days, "the greatest imaginative intellects of the race were functioning in response to a real demand," including Shakespeare and his contemporaries.

"Just as the voyages of Vasco Da Gama and Columbus and Magellan, by disclosing a new world, played havoc with traditional beliefs, created a demand for an explanation and an interpretation and produced the great poets of the Elizabethan period, so the discoveries of Dalton and Prout and Crookes and Roentgen during the second half of the nineteenth century disclosed another and even more marvelous universe within the atom, for an explanation of which we look to the physical scientist of today."

"Only a few of the paths of truth have yet been traversed and who can predict what the future may have in store? For observe that with all of our investigations and inquiries we are not creating anything. We are only finding out what already exists—facts of which mankind must take into account if it is to survive."

Human Progress Like Ascending Spiral.

Human progress was compared to "an ascending spiral, and the course of activity and rest, each of which is destined to make its special contributions to the total sum. Now it is to art, now to religion, now to the science of government, now to literature, now to philosophy, now to physical science, now to industry that we point in evaluating these epochs, for these are the things of the spirit and the intellect that do not perish though heaven and earth pass away."

"Broadly speaking," said Mr. Young, "it is true that with occasional exceptions the human mind had lain fallow in the field of practical achievement until 1875, just as it had in the field of language and literature before 1575.

"And then what a burst of glory. Graham Bell comes with the telephone, Edison with the electric lamp and a system to work it. Power, whether developed by steam or water, once stationary, is now mobile."

Physical Research Workers Poets.

"I salute the workers in physical research as the poets of today," he said. "It may be that they do not write in verse, but their communications are of such deep interest that they are on the front pages of our newspapers and command space in our cultural periodicals. They appeal to the imagination of us all. They contribute the warming glow of inspiration to industry, and when industry pulls their ideas down from the heavens to the earth and harnesses them for practical service, it feels that it is an important action, not only in the making of things, but on the larger stage of human spirit. There may be enough poetry in the whir of our machines so that our machine age will become immortal."

Well-Known Railway Conductor Tells of Merits of Nu-Erb

MR. D. A. DUNHAM

Declares It Gave Him Relief From Long Standing Ailments

Hundreds of railway men in this section know Mr. D. A. Dunham, 1002 McIlenry Street, Elmira, N. Y., the Pennsylvania Railway conductor, who has a remarkable record of 32 years service with that company.

"My stomach had been giving me a lot of trouble with gas and indigestion after nearly every meal," said Mr. Dunham. "I grew very nervous, lost my appetite, couldn't sleep nights and rheumatism set in my joints.

"A lot of railroad men had been using Nu-Erb and as I had heard some good reports about it I decided to give it a trial. I have been convinced that it is a medicine of most unusual merit. It not only gave prompt relief to my organic disorders, but also quieted my nerves, so that I now sleep well at night, gave me a good appetite and overcome the rheumatic condition that was getting its hold on me. I gladly recommend it."

Insist on Dr. French's Nu-Erb, which may be purchased in Kingston at McBride's Drug Store, 312 Wall street. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

Ulster Classis Pledges Its Help

At the recent meeting of the Classis of Ulster, Dr. Willard Dayton Brown, secretary of the Board of Education of the Reformed Church in America, made an address to Classis on the meaning of the Tercentenary of the Church and of the centennial of the board to the future work of the church. In view of the fact that the year 1928 marks also the centennial of the board it is purposed to endeavor to raise $100,000 as a Centenary Endowment. The members of Classis voted to raise $100 among themselves and thus make Ulster Classis a centurion in this campaign. The necessary amount was pledged during the session.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Oct. 19.—On Monday afternoon a number of friends of Miss Betty Lutin accompanied her to her home from school and spent a couple of hours with her in honor of her birthday. A social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Those present were the Misses Della Tamney, Jane and Helen Hinsburger, Lena Mertine, Charlotte Oats, Elaine Kniffen, Carolyn Yeaple, Marie LeFevre and a few others. Miss Lutin was the recipient of a number of pretty gifts.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 19, 1928.

PLENTY OF HOOBS.

This is supposed to be a sophisticated and hard-boiled era. Perhaps it is, but the swindlers find plenty of victims whenever they seek them.

In one city the other day three very ancient types of "con racket" were reported to the police in as many hours. In the first case a gullible citizen parted with $670 to a smooth gentleman who gave in exchange a package supposed to contain $1,000. The package actually contained three one-dollar bills. The $670 disappeared with the smooth gentleman.

In the second case the victim drew $184 from his bank and turned it over to a couple of strangers who had engaged him in entrancing talk about forming a partnership. One of these polite strangers was going to put $1,500 into their mutual "capital". The other was going to be treasurer and hold all the money. Unfortunately for the simple-minded boob with the $184, both strangers ran away, taking his money with them.

The third case involved making change. The shopper asked a theatre cashier to change a $10 bill giving change in quarters done up in five-dollar rolls. In a moment the man returned with what seemed to be one of these same rolls and said he'd like the five in dimes instead of quarters. Later, when the cashier opened the roll of quarters he found it contained nothing but slugs.

Perhaps it is reassuring to learn that there are still trusting and simple souls in the land. But it's hard on them.

THE SELF-OPERATOR.

"Physician, heal thyself!" is the ironic cry that has come ringing down the ages. And back of it has stood the truth that the physician, when sick, is as sick as anyone else, with pain and fever robbing him of judgment just as they do any sufferer. But here and there is a physician who has had to heal himself. In pioneer days the doctor who cut off his own frozen toe or finger to avert blood-poisoning, who poured down himself the tremendous doses of strong medicines needed to break the grip of yellow fever or cholera, was not so rare. He had to treat himself and take his own treatment if he expected to keep on going, because there was no one to fall back on for help.

Still, the case of Dr. Robert Meals, young California surgeon who removed his own appendix, is sufficiently startling. He was propped with pillows on the operating table of a hospital, used only a local anaesthetic, removed the appendix and sewed up the wound. Dr. Meals, by being patient and operator both at the same time, has learned some things he wanted to know which will help him with other patients. And he has demonstrated high physical courage.

Another home-made plane has crashed—this time in Dayton, O., the birthplace of the airplane. The plane was demolished and pilot and passenger were killed by striking a smokestack. There seem to have been three things at fault in this case. The pilot was unskilled and rash, the plane was hard to steer and the engine was an obsolete type, not entirely dependable. It has to be repeated over and over again that aviation, while safe enough when its requirements are met, is a difficult and exacting game. It calls for the utmost in dependability of the machine and knowledge and skill of the operator. The penalty for any weakness or error is likely to be death. Too many people are taking to the air rashly, without proper preparation or equipment. Passengers especially need to exercise care. Be sure it's a good pilot and a good plane.

Business women, the Detroit Salvation Army reports, are the most moral in the world. Sheltered home girls and wives with too much leisure are the chief victims of moral traps. Edith May Cummings, a highly successful business woman, echoes this verdict. Business women, she observes, have wholesome work to occupy their minds, experience of the world to develop their judgment of people, and much opportunity for wholesome social contacts. It naturally follows that American women in general, entering business and professional life in greater numbers than those of any other nation, have unusually high moral standards. Yet there was a time when the woman who adopted a business career was viewed with suspicious disapproval.

Three Pittsburgh youths aged respectively 17, 18 and 19, who admit having robbed and killed "for a thrill", go to the penitentiary for life. There might have been a thrill, too, in their execution, whether by noose or electric chair. There is no thrill in the "pen", occupying a drab cell and doing monotonous and unremunerative work, with an endless prospect of the same thing. Loeb and Leopold have found that out.

The Rev. John Watchhorn of Philadelphia thunders from his pulpit that "this nation can not exist half wet and half dry." All the more reason, then, for trying to find out which is the bigger half.

USING PURGATIVE DRUGS.

It is unfortunate for the health of so many folks that they have the impression that if they are to keep well they must take some medicine which will stimulate the movements of the intestine and thus prevent constipation.

Now that constipation is a serious matter is quite true, but that medicine is absolutely necessary is not true.

Because if medicine or a cathartic, as it is called, is used, the waste is removed, and the lower intestine lies empty for hours.

Now Nature didn't intend that it should be empty, but should always have waste matter within it on which the muscles of the intestine could keep healthy by working. Further, when medicine is taken everything is moved forward, even material in small intestine that should really be absorbed into the blood.

The point is that there are natural movements of the stomach, the small intestine, and the large intestine, and Nature stimulates these movements by various methods, all of which are necessary.

First, the brain enters into the movement of the stomach and extra juice flows, if the food is appetizing, and the table and dishes clean and attractive.

Then there are chemical substances in the different foods, that as they come against the sides of the intestine, stimulate it into activity. Then as you know there is the bile from the liver and the intestinal juice itself, which stimulate action in the walls of the intestine.

And then also some foods have more rough material in them than others, and this "roughage" as it is called, rubs or irritates the walls of the intestine and thus stimulates action.

Thus if all these things have a part in intestinal movement it doesn't seem like a wise act to take a purgative medicine. This simply interferes with all these methods Nature has arranged.

Now there are times when medicine may be needed, but to get the intestine into a good healthy natural condition, instead of taking medicine, talk things over with your family physician. He knows about these things from his study of physiology, and he will outline the health habits necessary in your case.

Sunday was rally day and promotion day at the Marlborough Methodist Church. The service began at 10:30 a. m. The devotional service was in charge of Miss Nellie Groves and the choir. After a brief talk by the pastor the various classes rendered a program of exercises and songs. This was followed by a report of the year's work of Mrs. Killinder's class. "The Daughters of the King" given by Beatrice Walker, after which certificates of merit and diplomas were presented by Mrs. Rhodes, assisted by the teacher. This is the first year of the "graded lessons" plan. The rewards were made upon notebook work and the quarterly examinations. Only those scholars having an average of 75 per cent were given certificates.

Deserve No Praise

It disgusts me to hear after-dinner and radio speakers praising ourselves. Praise our country but, in the name of all that is decent, don't praise ourselves. We have about ruined the appearance of this beautiful continent, for we have been the most inartistic people on earth, next to the Tibetans. —G. H. Corsan, in Forest and Stream Magazine.

Explaining Freckles

Freckles are always most distinct in summer, but though the influence of the sun's rays affect their distinctness, it is doubtful whether it can cause them. They are due to increased local deposits of pigment granules in the epidermis.

Predicts Teachers' Salaries Doubled

Educator Also Predicts Five-Hour Working Day for Labor—Business Needs Brains and Will be Willing to Contribute to Education.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 19 (AP).—Doubled salaries for teachers in universities and colleges increased contributions to education by big business, and a five-hour working day for labor, were predicted by Edward A. Filene of Boston, in an address at the 69th annual convocation of the University of the State of New York here today.

Education, expressed through scientific research, is largely responsible for the great prosperity of this country, Mr. Filene declared. He estimated that at least $200,000,000 is spent annually by the United States government and private commercial firms in research of various kinds.

"The application of scientific methods, based on research," he continued, "has enabled America to lead the world in productive efficiency. As a result, American workmen can have not only the necessities of life, but most of the comforts and many of the luxuries.

"Scientific mass production and the elimination of waste through an increasingly scientific system of mass distribution have made it possible for American business to operate at low cost and to pay the high wages that have made us a prosperous nation.

"Modern business must give preference to college and university men trained in scientific methods. Because of its need for brains successful business will be obliged to help and support education to a degree undreamed of until now. While we are contributing a great deal of money to education, it is wholly inadequate. No man can run a 10-acre factory with a 5-horsepower engine. Neither can we run America's 60,000,000-horsepower industrial system without intelligent manpower, in the low as well as in the high positions.

Business Needs Reasonable Workers.

"It is true that business needs masses of workers able to earn big incomes—that is, to produce efficiently, but it also needs workers who are reasonable instead of reckless in their consideration of social and economic issues. Cultural education is as important to business and industry as vocational training.

"It was formerly the fashion for the 'go-getter' business man to look upon learning and science as impractical. That was a serious handicap to education, and to business. Now it is generally realized that our educational institutions are turning raw man power into finished product that is essential to business, and business is ready to pay fairly.

"I do not doubt that the salaries of teachers will be doubled within a surprisingly short time. There must be time and opportunity and money for teachers to travel, not for the purpose of sight-seeing, but to get a surer understanding of the relation their specialty bears to life."

The speaker predicted that the five hour day will come when research has further perfected and extended mass production and thereby increased the volume of goods for consumption. When that time comes, he declared, the purchasing power of five hours of labor will be sufficient to buy all a man needs for a good living for himself and family.

"The five-hour day is closer than many realize," he remarked in closing.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Oct. 18.—The ladies of the church will serve a chicken supper Friday evening, November 2, in the basement of the church, beginning at six o'clock.

On Tuesday evening, October 25, the annual joint meeting of the Farm and Home Bureau will be held in the basement of the church, beginning at 8 o'clock. An interesting play entitled, "Twelve Good Men and True," will be given by home talent. There will be other forms of entertainment. Light refreshments will be served after the program is concluded.

The Ladies' Missionary Society met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Augustus Elmendorf.

Dean Archibald L. Bouton of the New York University, who was the guest of honor at the Hi-Y dinner in Kingston last Thursday evening, called on friends in Hurley that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wessels Ten Eyck and little son, Walter, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, are spending their vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Ten Eyck.

The annual luncheon of the Home Bureau will take place Friday, October 26, at the DeWitt home.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Sesnan of Brooklyn, N. Y., were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Chappell.

Mrs. M. B. Cameron, who has been spending several months with her daughter and husband, Dr. and Mrs. Hoge, of Wheeling, West Virginia, returned home Wednesday.

TRACES ORIGINS OF 'FIVE NATIONS'

Ethnologist Plans Biography of Chief Who United Indian Tribes.

Washington.—More knowledge of the achievement of Deganawida, lawgiver, statesman and prophet, who established the remarkable League of the Iroquois about 1570, has been brought back to Washington by J. N. B. Hewitt, Smithsonian ethnologist, after another summer of field work among descendants of the five tribes.

The life work of the great Indian statesman has become, in a sense, the life work of Hewitt.

He has devoted 30 years to study of the surviving legends, traditions and customs of the present-day Indians of New York and Canada whose forefathers won peace among themselves under the unwritten constitution of the league.

His effort has been directed to its accurate restoration and interpretation so that it may take its place in the written record of man's progress.

Plans Written Record.

Deganawida could not write; nor could any of his associates, but, appalled by the feuds and warfare which made the Iroquois country a "highway of blood," he sought means of insuring peace among all known tribes.

He formulated a constitution based on three sets of "double principles"—health and peace, righteousness and justice, authority and harmony between man and man, and man and nature.

Won Converts to League.

After a long period of proselyting among the tribes, in which he was aded by Djigonsasen, a chieftainess of the powerful neutral nation, and Hiawatha, a tribal chief and cannibal, he brought about the Federation of Five Nations, including the Mohawk, Onondaga, Oneida, Cayuga and Seneca tribes, with astonishingly successful results.

Hewitt's principal work this summer was done among the Six Nations of Iroquois living on the Grand river grant near Brantford, Canada, where, with the aid of interpreters and informants, he undertook the free translation of their historical tradition relating to the founding of the league.

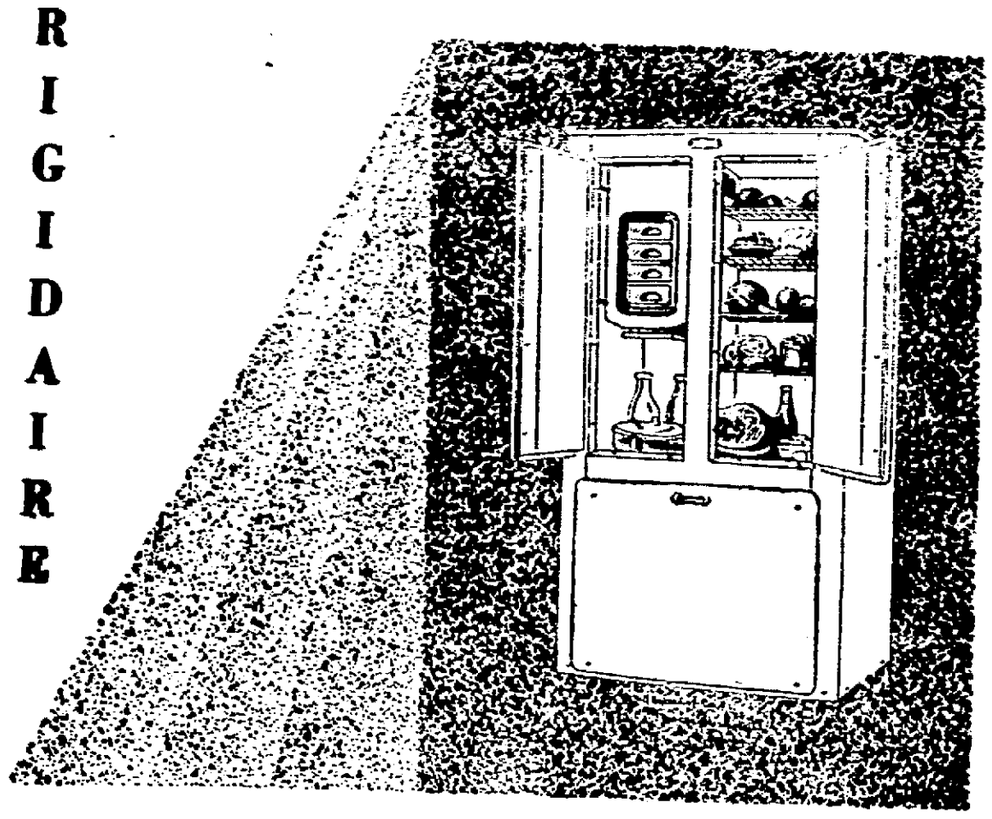

Crude Idea of Iron

The first iron ever used by man was called the "metal of heaven," for the very good reason, it is asserted, that that is precisely where it came from. It was iron from meteorites, found somewhere in the mountains of what is now Turkey.

THE NEW FRIGIDAIRE

Quiet for a life-time—that's the mechanism of the New Frigidaire. You don't hear it operate at all—when it starts, when it stops, or while it is running. The cabinets of this new refrigerator are beautiful to see—finished in white Duco or porcelain enamel of white and gray. A decorative asset to any kitchen or pantry, aside from its marvelous convenience, is this Frigidaire.

And its automatic qualities mean that there is no ice to buy—ice freezes itself in convenient cubes and is always available. A cold, dry atmosphere retains the fresh flavors of foods over long periods. Trips to market but once a week—and a fine food supply in the house to meet every day needs or emergencies!

Four Speeds Forward

Owners have been quick to appreciate, and comment favorably upon, the convenience of having two high speeds in the Graham-Paige four-speed transmission (standard gear shift). Fourth is silent and swift when the road is open; third, quiet and quickly responsive in traffic and up steep hills. We invite you to enjoy a drive.

I saw a young man on a side street down town
And with him a child perhaps five;
The little chap's face was exceedingly brown,
His eyes were alert and alive

The boy was quite playful though really not bad,
But father said, "Sonny, be good:
I want you to be a real nice little lad
And grow up like a gentleman would!"
He spoke with sincerity, too—
"Don't want to grow up like a gentleman, lad,
I want to grow up just like you."

Italians Move to Halt Swindling of Emigrants

Naples.—No matter how many times their fellow practitioners get caught, there are always people in this region and that to the south who persist in taking money from their countrymen in exchange for a guarantee to get them into America.

The latest to be taken by the police, Domenico Ferrante, is now thinking it over behind the bars. His accomplice Saverio Gallucci, is still being sought.

Their victim, young Pietro Bagliva, was smuggled aboard a liner and headed for New York. The immigration authorities, finding he had not even taken the trouble to provide himself with a faked passport, sent him back. Then his irate parents brought suit against the Ferrante-Gallucci combine for breach of contract. The crown prosecutor, however, quickly changed it from a civil action into a real prosecution.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Father Knickerbocker who spends more than half a billion a year, has set aside $12,500,000 for better motoring in the heart of Manhattan. An elevated motorway is to be built from Canal street to 72nd street, a distance of 4½ miles.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The spectacle of a great triumphal way bordered throughout much of its length by gasoline stations, lodging houses and Chinese laundries, distresses Andrew W. Mellon. But he was glad to add in an address at Carnegie Institute that Pennsylvania avenue is to be beautified.

New York—A portrait of Shakespeare, painted in 1603 by his friend, Sanders, is to be sold by the owner, Miss Mary Hale-Sanders, a direct descendant of the artist. It is executed on rosewood and valued at $100,000. The owner is selling a treasure which has always been in her family because she is alone and is giving up her home in London.

Plymouth, England—The place where the Pilgrim Fathers left England, which sent Nancy Langhorne Astor to Parliament and of which the Prince of Wales is Lord High Steward, at last has become a city. For 400 years Plymouth was a town.

Sayville, N. Y.—If it is good weather election day and members of the Island Hills Country Club desire to pursue their favorite sport, they must show they have voted before they are permitted on the links.

New York—Edna Wallace Hopper is back from Europe to help De Wolf Hopper celebrate his golden jubilee in the theatre. She was his third wife. He had had six. She says there will always be wives available for him, because he is a rare and splendid personality; he is ripping.

Macon, Ga.—Gutzon Borglum is to make a full length statue of Woodrow Wilson for Poland. He has received the commission from Paderewski.

New York—Fannie Brice is to auction the contents of her home. Why? "In order to get away from servants. They nearly killed me. I live in a hotel now. When I press a button a servant comes." Her own servants, she added, did everything but work. She stood it 12 years and said it is a wonder she wasn't killed long ago.

Chicago—The millenium approaches. A new wrinkle fixes your telephone so that it will take messages for you automatically and give them to you as received when you are ready to take them. It was demonstrated by John Collins of Waco, Texas, at a meeting of the Independent Telephone Association.

New York—These are golden days for retiring veterans of the New York Stock Exchange. S. S. Prince bought a seat in 1892 for less than $20,000, the highest price paid that year. He has sold it for $480,000. Julius Marx bought a seat in 1888, when the highest price was $24,000. He has sold it for $465,000.

"Service" Debs Often Lose Out on Debut

Washington.—Not all the society debutantes scheduled for coming out parties this fall and winter will actually get to participate in those joyous occasions of lights, music and flowers.

Every year there are sighs from a certain number of the "service" debs, as these girls belonging to army and navy circles are termed, because their fathers are suddenly ordered to some far distant post. All arrangements for the long-looked for debutante ball or tea have to be canceled.

Sometimes the decorations are ready and the coming out gowns laid away in tissue paper when the terse order comes. Then there is a wild flurry recalling invitations and canceling orders for flowers and refreshments and a service-deb-to-be is unceremoniously whisked away with red eyes and reproachful looks. Quite a number of such debs are to make their bow in capital society this winter.

Helping John Bull

London.—Presumably from over the sea a helping hand is stretched forth to John Bull. The treasury has been given anonymously $15,000 in United States Steel 5 per cent bonds to help pay the interest on the debt to Uncle Sam.

Like Convalescent, Farm Profits Hover on Edge of Health

L. H. Bean, federal agricultural economist, describes the national farm income as "a convalescent, recovering but not up to par." In charts for government publication, he shows (below) that the income per farm still is below the 1919-20 period. Above he shows that dairy and poultry products have the highest total farm value, based on cash income and the value of what is consumed on the farm.

A go-getter once became his own boss. In two months he worked himself to death.

Club Federation Elects Delegates

The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs was held at the Kingston City Library on Thursday afternoon. Following so closely upon the open meeting of Monday night there was but little business to transact, and practically no club or committee reported, except from the good government committee which reported upon conditions found at some of the polling places at the first registration which will be made even more helpful today and tomorrow. Again the women were urged to remind all of their friends to take careful note of the referendum regarding Sunday movies which is to be voted for at the coming election.

On request of the county Federation chairman, it was voted that unless there were objection by the next entertaining club, the January open meeting would be in the nature of a county Federation meeting to be held in Kingston.

In addition to the president, Mrs. Edgar N. Palen, the following Federation members were elected as delegates to the coming State Federation meeting to be held in New York city, November 12-15 inclusive: Mrs. Conklin, Mrs. Cordts and Dr. Day. The president was empowered to appoint four alternates.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

BRIGHT FASHIONS FORECAST BRILLIANT SOCIAL SEASON

[illegible] we are at the moment concerned. The glory of their colors, the [illegible] of their feature and the [illegible] by which they are fashioned [illegible] for a brilliancy of [illegible] this winter.

One sees the Metropolitan premiere ablaze, as never before. How can it fail to be with jewels and rich furs, laces and velvets to no end?

[illegible] determine the [illegible] of extravagance which keys the present scheme of dressing. While many of the humble animals are, by various processes elaborated [illegible] or [illegible] is apparent throughout the handling of all furs, [illegible] or otherwise. This is consistent with [illegible] all costumes [illegible] individualized just now, this being partly because one is permitted to choose at will among a great diversity of materials, colors and even silhouettes.

[illegible] have gone far afield in assembling their fall offerings. It is not possible to charge uniformity to the present mode, so that the personal preference is largely responsible for making or marring appearances. The molded line, over a supple figure, the attention to dark draperies and ornamentations, the increase not only in length but breadth of the average skirt, and the development of detail, all tell a story of a sophisticated, rather than a simple mode.

Chanel, however, seems to prefer to [illegible] the other side of the picture, her greatest offerings being of sports and relatively simple clothes. She strives, as never before, to preserve a balance in favor of youth and simplicity. She makes interesting use of the simpler trimming devices, and adds a brass button or two to offset a too formal air.

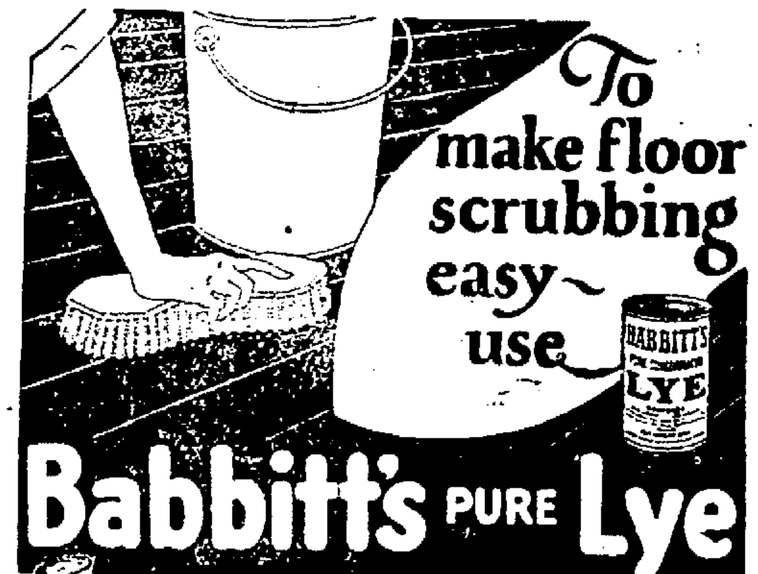

Thinking of fashions from the viewpoint of youth, it is apparent that French mothers have eschewed more fantastic types and have been intrigued by sturdier materials and by more practical lines. There remains the keen interest in tricot for both juveniles in years and juveniles merely in spirit, for after all what more are sports clothes than play clothes grown up?

Eleanor Gunn Says

New York.—Navy blue hosiery, in very sheer effects, is endorsed by those who are going in for navy ensembles.

The cravat collar is a practical one for the fur coat and after the manner of most fur trimmings is in contrast to the coat on which it appears.

The knapsack pocket is smart for fur coats.

The snug hipline remains one of the outstanding details of the season.

The tuck-in-blouse is one of the attempted revivals meeting with some endorsement.

Jet spangles, triangular in form are a Chanel conceit well received. Incidentally the spangled jacket has become something of a factor with those who affect formal attire.

A widened coat silhouette is approved, many circular and semi-circular models being worn.

Python is featured at smart bootmakers in black, navy and brown. Faille and crepe de Chine are used for evening slippers.

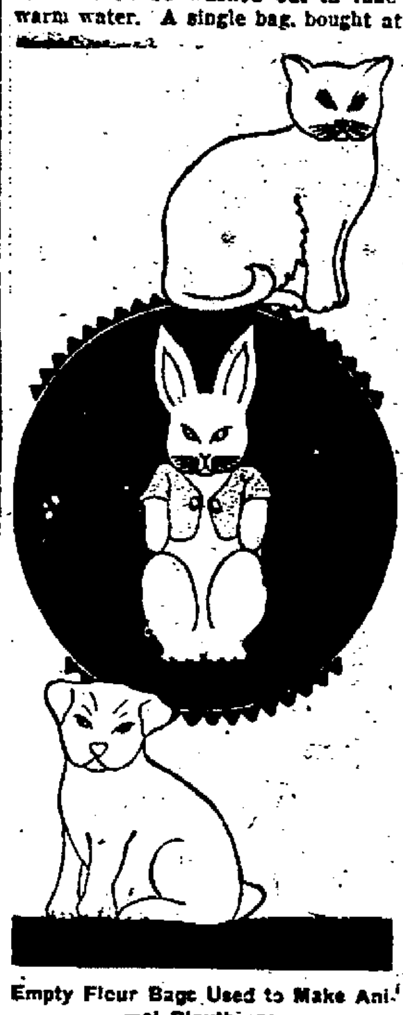

Boroso calf is one of the novelty leathers approved for handbags, many formal types being made up in antelope.

Animals for Children Made of Flour Bags

Going to bed isn't such a bad business after all if you can make some one else go to bed, too. These three animal friends are made to give just such companionship. Before they took on their nursery duties they were only an empty flour bag, collapsed and useless. Then some energetic mother took them in hand and restored them to a life of usefulness.

To make these animals, the chain stitching is first pulled out of the bag and the stamping removed by covering the inked places with lard or soaking them in kerosene for a few hours. It can then be washed out in lukewarm water. A single bag, bought at a bakery for a few cents will make several of these animals, depending, of course, on the size.

Empty Flour Bags Used to Make Animal Playthings.

If one has the slightest skill in drawing, no pattern is required for cutting these out, as children are not exacting about physiology so long as eyes, ears, nose and tail are discernible. These features are worked in black outline stitch. The nose is red and the eyes brown. Shoe button eyes are not advisable in toys for very small children.

The rabbit's ears might be lined with a bit of pink flannel and his coat made out of findings in the scrap bag.

Sew the back and front together, leaving an opening at the side for the stuffing. Snips of clean rags and old underwear are better than bran or sawdust for stuffing because they will not leak so disastrously. As soon as the doll becomes at all soiled, remove the stuffing and launder.

Character dolls from the children's favorite fairy stories or comic strip can be created in the same way with just a little more effort and will delight them enormously.

Peculiar Blindness

The scientific name for day blindness is hemeralopia. This is described as inability to see as well in a bright light as a dim. This condition is sometimes found in albinos.

Truck Crops Light In New York

Largely on account of the unfavorable weather, the production of truck crops in New York state is below that of last year, according to a joint federal crop report just released by the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

The cold wet weather last spring delayed the planting and growth of early crops of onions, cabbage and celery. Following this, generally dry weather with floods in some sections caused much damage to the late growth. Reversed conditions during the late summer and early fall tended still further to cut the production of these crops.

At the top of the list of the producers of late or Danish cabbage stands New York. Last year the bumper crop of about 247,500 tons was produced. This year on a reduced acreage with poor growing conditions, an estimated production of only 165,200 tons is now forecast from an estimated acreage of 20,650 acres compared with 22,940 acres last year and a yield per acre of 8 tons compared with 10.8 tons last year. For the whole United States, the estimated production is now placed at 274,000 tons compared with 366,000 tons produced last year.

About the normal acreage of onions was planted last spring but the waters during June and July in two of the three most important onion growing sections of the state reduced the onion acreage that more than three-fourths of the planted acreage remained for harvest. Unusually hot, sunny weather after the heavy rains also injured a considerable acreage of the crop. The final production of the crop is now forecast at 1,250,000 bushels compared with 1,852,000 bushels harvested last year. For the whole United States, the late onion production is now estimated at only 11,929,000 bushels compared with 17,773,000 bushels harvested last year. Indiana promises 2,255,000 bushels compared with 2,738,000 bushels; Massachusetts 1,365,000 bushels compared with 1,-812,000 bushels; Ohio 1,294,000 bushels compared with 2,352,000 bushels; and Michigan 956,000 bushels compared with 1,275,000 bushels last year.

Celery also got away to a late start but good growing weather during July caused it to make very rapid growth. Extremely dry weather later in the season caused a decline in the outlook. Blight has taken some toll. Insects, such as the tarnished plant bug, have destroyed many stalks. The present outlook for New York celery is for a production of 1,299,000 crates compared with 1,714,000 crates harvested last year. Michigan promises 710,000 crates compared with 846,000 last fall. For the whole United States, the present outlook for late celery is for a production of about 2,677,000 crates compared with 3,368,000 crates harvested last fall.

With the demands on a woman's time these days and the various interests which engross her, matters of home management must be run with as little fuss and bother as possible. Refrigeration, for example, must be absolutely automatic, completely efficient.

The General Electric Refrigerator operates so automatically that you never even have to oil it. It is unusually quiet, makes plenty of ice and uses little current. It is "years ahead" in design because all its machinery is enclosed in an air-tight steel casing, mounted on top.

Harvest Home at Redeemer Church

The first Harvest Home service and social of Redeemer Church proved a great success. An abundance of all kinds of food was brought by members and friends and later distributed among a number of needy families.

A brief devotional service was held at which time the pastor, the Rev. O. Brandorff, spoke on the sacrifices which the congregation was offering; namely, the fruit of the fields; the fruit of their lips in praise and also the sacrifice of service to others.

Following the devotional service a program in charge of George Ramming was rendered. There was a tableau, "The Old Oaken Bucket" in which Pansy Ramming, Florence Herd, Fred Spalt, Richard Bailey and Mrs. O. Brandorff took part. Richard Meyer, violinist, rendered several pleasing numbers and received hearty applause. The choir sang "Moonlight and Music" and "The Boat Song." Another tableau, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," was given by Miss Ethel Schleet, William Mohr, Edward and Virginia Luedke. Community songs were sung before and after the program. Refreshments were then served.

On Sunday evening the regular monthly Question Box service will be held when the pastor will endeavor to answer a number of very timely questions.

The Senior Luther League will hold its regular monthly fellowship hour at 5:30 p. m. After a light luncheon George Hutt of the high school faculty will speak.

October Term Of Court Ends

No cases being ready for trial Thursday afternoon when court convened, Judge George H. Smith, who has been holding the October term of Supreme court, adjourned court to chambers at Monticello and dismissed the jury. Athough there have been but few cases actually tried, over 100 actions appearing on the calendar have been disposed of during the term.

Odd Fellows' Card Party.

Aretas Lodge degree team will hold a card party October 31 in Odd Fellows' Temple, corner Broadway and Brewster street. This is going to be something new in card parties as the prizes will be in accordance with Hallow'en. The prizes will come direct from the farm. The committee in charge is planning for a large crowd as this is their first card party.

Old Expression

"Once in a blue moon" was first used by Roy and Barlow in "Rede Me and be not Rothe" in England in 1528. It was formerly used to designate something that will never happen. E. C. Brewer in his book, "Phrase and Fable," says: "On December 10, 1528, we had a blue moon. The winter was unusually mild." The expression is now used to mean very seldom.

Judge Smith Talks To Hi - Y Boys

Wednesday night the regular Hi-Y meeting was held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. All the boys present were glad that they came because the Hon. George H. Smith, Judge of the Third judicial district, was the speaker of the evening. He spoke on the subject "Standards Essential to Our Civilization and Why We Should Create, Maintain and Extend Them."

He said that he didn't like to sentence a man yet it is an important job but if we maintain high standards he won't have to. He said that our Christian standards don't change, that if you get your right bearings when you start out you will arrive. He told about hearing of thrills—thrills that are dangerous—but there are thrills where no dangers lurk and they are real and create enthusiasm. There are more dangers to be encountered caused by greater freedom. All this makes for responsibility, and happiness comes when you heed your responsibilities which cannot be escaped. Public duties cannot be dodged by anyone except a coward. There is a real satisfaction in taking your responsibilities. He said every one wants to be known as a man among men, but only those succeed who build the foundation while a boy. He told us that he is an optimist but prudence and wisdom require us to take notice of the danger warnings.

The United States is spending millions to maintain penal institutions to protect the people from the people who won't abide by the laws. Our government has fallen down on its protection. King Alfred said that he would make his country safe for any woman or child to travel anywhere within its boundaries at anytime, night or day, showing that the olden days were better than today. Our institutions depend on public opinion so it is up to the boy of today to get set on high standards of Christian character, fixed and determined. If we do so we will live what Theodore Roosevelt called the "ample life."

Judge Smith said that he was very interested in the Boy Scouts of America. It was through his efforts that a tract of land two miles wide and nine miles long was secured for the New York Boy Scouts. This tract is large enough to hold 30,000 Scouts at one time. Judge Smith spoke to the Hi-Y Club last year and he spoke so well that the invitation to come and speak again was extended by President Shader.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Museum Scene of Last Act in Long Drama

Skeletons of prehistoric monsters, the Brontosaurus and Diplodocus, that roamed the western part of the American continent thousands of years ago are being fitted together at the National Museum in Washington to form one of the largest fossil exhibits in the world. They will be similar to the Brontosaurus restoration above and the Diplodocus restoration (inset), both drawn by Charles R. Knight, under the direction of Henry Fairfield Osborne, of the American Museum of Natural History.

Smith Speaks in Chicago Tonight

Silent on Line of Attack He Will Adopt—Will Tour Chicago By Automobile — Speeds Eastward Saturday.

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP).—Still silent on the line of attack he will adopt, Governor Smith today planned to put the finishing touches on the address he will deliver tonight in the 131st Regiment Armory in an effort to swing this normally Republican state into the Democratic column in November.

The Democratic presidential nominee last night completed a tentative draft of the speech. The first thing on his schedule today called for a revision of this rough outline and then for his participation in a two and a half hour tour of Chicago by automobile. Arrangements had been made for the procession to start from his hotel and to end there after a visit to Northwestern University at Evanston and Chicago University on the south side of the city.

More than fifty miles of touring were on the program mapped out by a local committee and thousands of Chicagoans, according to the arrangements committee, had planned to turn out to witness the procession.

The night speech of Governor Smith will be the seventh he has delivered since his present swing through the south and border states of Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri, all of which he feels confident of winning in the rapidly approaching national election. The address also will bring to a close his second extensive tour of the campaign.

Will Visit Tom Taggart.

Tomorrow will see Smith speeding eastward to prepare for his third and final campaign dash which will carry him down the Atlantic seaboard from Boston to Baltimore. On the way east to Albany, he will stop late in the afternoon for an hour in Indianapolis, where Democratic chieftains have arranged a parade in his honor. It also is expected that the nominee will find time to visit Tom Taggart, for years a power in the Hoosier Democracy, who is now ill in a hospital. No special stops are expected to be made in Ohio.

Governor Smith's first full day in Chicago was spent almost entirely within the seclusion of the Congress Hotel. He received several Democratic leaders and delegations of well-wishers, and held a press conference, but devoted nearly all his time to tonight's speech. After dinner he ventured outside for the first time for a ten-minute walk on Michigan Boulevard and then went back to his desk.

One of the delegations he received was a group of labor leaders, headed by John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who call themselves the Alfred E. Smith for President Union Labor League. The delegation, claiming to represent 500,000 trade unionists, presented the nominee a resolution attacking the Republican party on its farm relief, prohibition, labor and other stands and praising Governor Smith's "profound humanitarianism" and "ideals of Americanism."

In the brief reply, the Democratic standard-bearer thanked the delegation for its support and promised he would devote an entire speech to labor soon, probably in Boston.

ROOSEVELT TOURS NORMALLY STRONG REPUBLICAN TIER

Elmira, N. Y., Oct. 19 (AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt today neared the end of a vigorous campaign tour of the normally strong Republican southern tier of the state, which as Democratic nominee for governor he hopes to swing into his party's column on election day.

Traveling a route not often followed by Democratic candidates, Mr. Roosevelt in his first campaign address at Binghamton Wednesday night and in a speech here last evening assailed religious bigotry, and the "paper prosperity" and "broken promises" of the Republican Federal administration. For his appearance at Jamestown tonight, his last engagement in this section, he planned a speech tying up the inter-dependency of cities and rural districts and the problems of the farmer.

A motor ride of 183 miles was before Mr. Roosevelt and his party today but the itinerary called for short stops at Corning, Hornell, Olean and Salamanca. At each place arrangements were made for Mr. Roosevelt and some of his associates on the state ticket to meet the voters.

Track Set For Big Auto Races Here Saturday

First Race Will Start at 3 o'clock at Kingston Driving Park—Some of Country's Best Dirt Track Performers Will Be Seen In Action.

Tomorrow's auto races at the Kingston Driving Park will show some of the country's best dirt track performers and thrills aplenty are promised. The meet which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and which is under sanction of the three A's, otherwise known as the American Automobile Association, represents the highest type of racing and the public can be assured of high class sport. The first race will get under way at 3 o'clock.

Every man at the wheel of a car knows how to drive—and what's more he is a very good pilot or he would not be entered here.

Nine events are on tap Saturday with the feature between Ira Vail and Ralph De Palma. Both these men of the dirt tracks and the speedways, while friendly, still are great rivals on the track. Only years of experience have shoved them to the top in racing. They meet in three sprint races of six laps each. If any can win two straight then it will decide the match decisively. Both have Miller cars in A-1 condition for their battle.

A trio of Philadelphians are here to add more glory to their records, Bill Strickler, Al Aspen and Frankie Farmer, winners many times at the Philadelphia Speedway mile track at Langhorne, Pa. Any of these lads might win, for all are fast.

Aspen has an F. & J. car that can whizz. It will bear a No. 3, and take the turns, and almost fly along the stretch—this is Aspen's specialty. He is one lad who will bear watching. He recently won three races at Harrisburg, Pa.

Frankie Farmer comes from the same town, Philadelphia, as Ray Keech, who holds the world's fastest speed record, 207.5 miles per hour. In fact Ed. Vagel of Philadelphia, who owns Keech's car, gave Farmer his start with fast cars.

But then there is that speedy French driver, Charlie Cyr, who has a Frontenac, and De Palma, Vail, Aspen or Charles Ganung, with their Millers will have a tough time keeping up with him.

The officials of the race include Mayor Edgar J. Dempsey, George Auburb Brown, Henry Forst, Douglas Clark, A. A. A. starter, and others.

First DUSO Game Here Saturday

Game With Poughkeepsie at Fair Grounds Slated as "Biggest of Season"—Tilt to Start at 2:30—Kingston Practicing for Hard Battle.

Coach Klas has been drilling stiff workouts for Kingston High School varsity in preparation for the team's first DUSO League game of the season against Poughkeepsie at the Kingston Fair Grounds Saturday. The tilt scheduled as "the biggest game of the season" will start at 2:30.

The workouts given the local varsity every day aim to build up endurance as well as a fine brand of football strategy. First, the high school gridders are made to run around the field for the purpose of loosening up and getting up a "sweat." The whole team then lines up and one by one the boys tackle and take-out the dummy. This gives the coach a good chance to see just what material does the best on defense and the experience lends greatly toward developing a goodly amount of endurance. Practical experience in this branch of the game is obtained by the players when the varsity and seconds go through a scrimmage period, which is the last order of all practices. Just previous to this the varsity gets its signal practice. During this time Coach Klas pays much attention to special plays, that call for end runs and forward passes.

Kingston High School varsity is in fine condition. All the men on the eleven take part in scrimmage each night and continue to show signs of improvement as the time shortens previous to the big game. The coach is drilling his backfield men on the defense against aerial attacks. Rumor has it that Poughkeepsie is very strong on end runs and the forward passing game. Coach Klas is taking every advantage of the warning.

In scrimmage Thursday evening between the varsity and seconds, the former scored three touchdowns. Clarke made two drop kicks count for after touchdown points. The varsity made considerable gains of ten and fifteen yards on end runs and faired very well on line plunges.

Molvin Training For Hard Fight

Charlie Molvin, National Guard scrapper, who has a large following in Kingston, is making ready for a tough go with Freddie Williams of the 369th Infantry at the armory Monday night, October 22. Te little K. O. artist is sticking to a hard grind daily to be in the best of shape for the coming scuffle.

"This Williams is a hard boy. I am told," said Molvin in Doc Studer's gym, where he trains, "but he will have to go some to beat me at the armory Monday night. I am going to do all in my power to defeat him in a manner that the fans like."

From Molvin's attitude indications point to a knockout win for the Kingston scrapper. Of course Charlie is not over confident, which he expressed when he said "he will have to go some to beat me", but he is not worrying about the battle. Molvin's coolness, fans believe, is what lends a great deal of his winning ability to the local fistic warrior.

According to Armorer Ed Fitzgerald, tickets for Monday night's fistic entertainment are going fast. Many are reserving seats, which may be done over the telephone. Of course there are some good seats left, but all who expect to get choice places are advised to call the armory as early as possible.

Big Grid Games In New England

Outstanding Attractions Saturday In Eastern Collegiate Football Schedule—Games to be Staged in Pennsylvania.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—New England and Pennsylvania, in a less degree get all the breaks in tomorrow's eastern collegiate football schedule.

New England, in particular, will be the mecca for Atlantic seaboard pigskin followers with such outstanding attractions as the Army-Harvard, Brown-Yale, Columbia-Dartmouth and Fordham-Holy Cross games.

The Army, given a rather large dose of forward passes by Southern Methodist two weeks ago, will get similar treatment at Cambridge where Arnold Horween has been spending the week developing an aerial offensive. The cadets nosed out Southern Methodist by one point, but Horween has hopes of betterlng the Texans' record. After Yale's defeat of Georgia, there are few to give Brown more than an outside chance to beat the Elis at New Haven, for Tuss McLaughry's eleven was not especially effective against Dayton.

Columbia must stop Al Mersters and a well-planned aerial attack if she hopes to conquer Dartmouth at Hanover. Fordham's problem, on the other hand, will be to stop the hard-plunging Holy Cross backs.

There four battles lead New England's program, but there are others. The "Little Three" all will be at home. Williams Travels to Middletown, Conn., to meet Wesleyan, while still another New York state team, Hamilton, faces Amherst on hostile territory. Tufts and Bowdoin offer a little classic all their own at Brunswick, Me.

What New England fails to get in the way of football publicity tomorrow will fall to Pennsylvania, where such games as Penn State-Pennsylvania, Bucknell-LaFayette, Washington and Jefferson-Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh-Allegheny, Maryland-Duquesne and Gettysburg-Villa Nova, are on the program.

Pennsylvania stands out as a favorite to defeat the Nittany Lions, just as they did a year ago. But Bezdek's eleven upset the dope in 1927 and registered a 20 to 0 victory. Bucknell, on the strength of its victory over Penn State last week is given a chance, in some quarters at last, to stop LaFayette's triumphant advance.

Carnegie Tech would rule a heavy favorite over Wash-Jeff but for the fact that the presidents seem to have the "Indian Sign" on the Pittsburgh eleven. Carnegie has scored only one victory over W. and J. since 1906.

Out in the west, Syracuse and Colgate will carry the Empire state's banners into intersectional conflict. Syracuse, unbeaten so far, will need all its strength to turn back Nebraska at Lincoln. Colgate, playing a heavy intersectional schedule with mixed success, tackles Michigan State.

The urge to go north or west leaves New York state without a single outstanding contest. New York University will entertain Rutgers at the Yankee Stadium in New York city, on paper at least, this battle does not rate with the headliners. Rutgers was given an unmerciful trouncing by Holy Cross last week and does not figure to extend Chick Meehan's powerful eleven.

New Jersey will have an opportunity to see a revised Princeton lineup do battle with Lehigh and Navy against Duke, will seek its first victory in four starts. Georgetown, leading the east in scoring, takes on West Virginia Wesleyan, which may extend the Washington eleven but hardly is expected to become unduly obstreperous.

SUPERSTITIONS OF COACH McMILLAN

Former Centre College Football Star Played Hunches.

Bo McMillan, the famous and colorful Centre college quarterback of a few years ago, who took Charley Bachman's place as head coach of the Kansas Aggies, has a thousand and one football superstitions. At least he did have them while he went to school. Perhaps, as a coach, he has found superstitions do not win games and has discarded them, but anyway he had them at one time. And how!

Bo had a blue shirt and a red necktie, for instance, that he never failed to wear whenever Centre went on a trip. He put them on when he dressed to leave town and kept them on, except for the time he wore his football suit, until he returned. Now Centre in those days took a number of long trips. The team played on both the East and West coasts. But even on trips that kept him on the hop for a week he stuck to that old shirt and necktie though soot lined the wrinkles of both.

Bo also had an old belt he wore in high school don at Fort Worth. He kept it when he went to college and never went into a game without it. Oh, yes, quite superstitious. He even made over every pair of football pants he wore at Centre, if just to tear open the seams and sew them again himself.

Centre was a much photographed team in its winning years, and not the least photographed by any means of all the men was Bo. However, for all the insistent attempts of the photographers to snap him before a game, and insistent is right, they never could. Bo would have none of it. After the game, all right, but before—never.

He insisted further on being the last man to enter the park, the last man to leave the dressing room and the last man to set foot on the field. Even Charley Moran, the coach, had to precede him.

Of superstitious nature, he naturally played the wildest hunches. One night before a big game Bo dreamed he ought to put a pair of dice on the roof of a certain high building. No sooner dreamed than done. He got up the next morning, put on his sooty blue shirt and red necktie, picked out a high building and stuck the dice, "snake eyes" up, in a cornice.

Centre won the game.

Golf Ball Strikes Tree and Is Holed Out in One

The 150-yard No. 3 hole of the Highland Park course in Birmingham, Ala., is an easy par 3 or a hard 5 and is famous as a place where freak shots are becoming the rule rather than the exception.

Joe Spain, Birmingham amateur, was trailing in a threesome when they reached No. 3. He pulled his mashie shot over the trees bordering a street and the ball landed on a concrete uphill driveway. Taking a kick backward, the ball came through the boughs of the trees and landed a few feet off the green, from where Spain, still using his mashie, clouted it into the cup for a birdie.

Col. Karl Landgrebe's hole in 1 on No. 3, however, still remains the outstanding freak shot of the course. With a tremendous drive from the tee, the colonel sent his ball sailing down the fairway to the right of the green, where it struck a tree trunk, caromed to the green and rolled several club lengths into the cup.

Timm Is Big Help

"Big" Timm from Idaho is putting up an excellent game in the backfield for Coach Zuppke this fall. He is mighty fast on his feet and is a valuable asset to the team.

Big Al Weston Is Back Again in Eagle Uniform

Al Weston, ace of the Boston college backfield the last three years, set at rest all rumors that he would not play football this year when he appeared in a uniform the other day.

The big Needham boy declared that, inasmuch as he had played football last fall and had been playing baseball practically every day since early spring, he thought a week's rest would do no harm and perhaps some good. He looked to be in perfect condition and spent the afternoon following the new plays as put on by a temporary first team.

Another newcomer was Frank Lyons, former Newton High star, and a substitute back the last two years. His work as caddy master at Brae Burn has kept him in good condition.

Baronets Have Strong Lineup

Former College and High School Men on Upstate Eleven—All Local Players Probably Will Get Chance to Play—Yellow Jackets Practice Tonight.

A light practice session, which every Yellow Jacket football player is requested to attend, will be given the team tonight by Coach Preston in preparation for the tilt with the Baronets of Johnstown, one of the strongest elevens in the up-state section.

The Baronets, composed of men who average 165 pounds, have a number of former college and high school players in their lineup. Allen, who plays left tackle, is a product of Notre Dame Prep School; Bland, right tackle, once held down a berth on the eleven from Williams Town College and Bob and Hank Cerrone, reserves, are R. P. I. men. The 29 men who make up the Baronet squad know their football and will give Kingston a better go than any team the local oppose this season, is the contention of many football fans.

Indications point that every man on the Yellow Jacket roster will get a chance in the game Sunday. There will be no extra men imported to help out the Kingston team. Men who suffered injuries in games or practices recently have sufficiently recovered to take up the war against the Baronets Sunday.

The Baronets will take the field as follows: re., Knowles; rt., Bland; rg., Hollenbeck; c., Higby; lg., Krause; lt., Allen; le., Johnson; rhb., De Magistris; lhb., Collins; fb., Gusondi; qb., Brown. Reserves—Rupert, Weirs, Velisky, Macali, Subik, E. Collins, Bob Cerrone, Hank Cerrone.

The Yellow Jacket representatives will be picked from the following roster: fb., Hasbrouck; hb., Hoffman; hb., Cirone; hb., Colvin; hb., Milican; ends, Scheffel, Rice and Smith; tackles, Howard, Terwilliger, Kennedy; guards, Schultz, Rose, Atchinson; center, Cassidy; quarterback, Winters.

GAVE POISON TO "EASE PAIN"

Missouri Nurse Added to Long List of Wholesale Slayers.

Chicago.—The latest addition to the ranks of wholesale murderers is Mrs. Bertha Gifford, a fifty-six-year-old elderly woman of Carrollton, Mo. She was indicted recently for the murder of two persons and is suspected of having murdered 17 others. Unlike most of her kind, she seems not to have murdered for profit. Mrs. Gifford's method of killing was hackneyed—a big dose of arsenic. Her manner of approach was unique. The "kind Samaritan," as she was called by her neighbors, "loved to tend the sick." As soon as she got wind of an illness she was off to the bedside of the sick one. Although a good nurse, competent, sympathetic and cheerful, her patients, strangely enough, usually died. After a few years the deaths that followed her appearance caused suspicion, but she spiked all rumors in righteous indignation at such evil thoughts. The families of the dead refused to permit post mortems and Mrs. Gifford continued to be a solace and comfort to the sick. Finally a doctor insisted that an autopsy be performed on one of her patients. The verdict was death by poisoning. When she was arrested she confessed freely. She said that her victims were given arsenic "to quiet their pains." Unfortunately the quieting was permanent.

One Woman Killed 2,500.

A woman with 17 victims is entitled to some consideration as a wholesale murderess, but Mrs. Gifford is outranked by such expert and prodigious killers as the ancient Madame La Voison, who accounted for 2,500 victims; the haughty Marchioness de Brinvilliers, who restricted herself to poisoning her many lovers; Mrs. Belle Gunness, Kate Bender and family, George Joseph Smith, Fritz Haarmann, Bluebeard Landru and J. P. Watson.

The reign of Mrs. Belle Gunness as queen of American murderesses extended from about 1900 to 1908. During this period she performed about 150 slayings—all of them committed on her farm at La Porte, Ind. Her victims were of both sexes. Age was no bar to Mrs. Gunness. Her main objective was the speedy death of her numerous husbands, whom she murdered for their money.

This rather large, middle-aged woman—she weighed 220 pounds and was forty-five years old when she first attracted attention—had a peculiar attraction for men. Many of her husbands married her solely for love. The rest came as the result of advertisements placed in the Norwegian and Swedish newspapers. She would offer herself as a bride, promising to match any sum that a prospective husband would bring.

When she received a reply she would send a certain Roy Lamphere, who would pose as her brother, to the intended victim. If the marked man had enough money the deal was closed and the hopeful bridegroom returned with Lamphere to the farm at La Porte. His career as Mrs. Belle Gunness' husband might last as long as a week. His bride, having by this time got hold of his money, would give him chloroform. If he did not succumb immediately Mrs. Gunness used her ax to complete the job. The number of times she went through this procedure will never be definitely known, but if it had not been for Roy Lamphere, the slaughter might have gone on much longer.

Lamphere was the only permanent boarder at La Porte. It is said that he exerted a fascination over the lady and she could never bring herself to kill him. He evidently knew her propensities and seemed to have her pretty much scared, because she paid him large sums of money from time to time. It was a fight over money that resulted in the stopping of her activities.

Andrew Helgieam gave $3,000 for the privilege of being the last husband of Mrs. Gunness. After his death, in the customary manner, Roy Lamphere demanded a share of the money. It was refused. To show his dissatisfaction he set fire to the farmhouse, with Mrs. Gunness and her three children inside it. The house burned to the ground, and it is believed that Mrs. Gunness perished in the flames. When the charred ruins were examined a secret room was found in the cellar that Mrs. Gunness had used as a private burial ground for her victims.

Bender Family Killed Eleven.

Roy Lamphere was tried for arson and the murder of Mrs. Gunness and her three children, but the prosecutor was unable to produce the "corpus delicti" or prove that anyone was in the house at the time of the fire. On April 28, 1908, the jury found the defendant guilty of arson. He got two to twenty years. Death in prison followed quickly, and he is said to have confessed to the murder of Mrs. Gunness. There is much doubt about this confession, and the mystery of what happened to Mrs. Gunness still remains unsolved.

Late in 1870 there appeared in Labette county, Kan., the four Benders—Kate, her brother John, his wife and son. Kate was the leader of the family both in looks and action. She no doubt was the instigator of the crimes the family committed.

Kate Bender was an attractive girl of twenty-four. She had flaming red hair, a buxom figure and was considered the belle of the county. Kate was also intelligent. She had a flair for public speaking and traveled around the country giving lectures on spiritualism and hypnotism. For a time she was a waitress in a hotel and was well liked by the travelers.

In 1871 she prevailed upon her mother to open up an inn on the Post road between Parsons and Cherryville, Kan. There was nothing palatial about this hostelry. It consisted of but two rooms, one of which was divided by a heavy curtain. Business was slow and the Benders lived there in perfect harmony with their neighbors. Gradually rumors started to circulate to the effect that strange things were happening at the inn. There was no real ground for this suspicious talk and nothing was done until March, 1873, when Dr. William H. York, who had visited his brother, Colonel York, disappeared.

Find Bodies in Orchard.

The last time the doctor was seen he remarked that he was going to stop off and have dinner at the Bender inn. He was known to have a large sum of money in his possession. After three weeks had passed and Doctor York was still missing, his brother, the colonel, began to search for him. The doctor's movements were traced and his trail led to the Bender inn. There it was lost. This fact, together with the growing suspicions of the neighbors, was sufficient to gather a posse to go and call on the Benders. The visit brought nothing to light and the posse left after making some pointed remarks. A week later it was discovered that the Bender inn was deserted. Colonel York returned and again made a search of the premises. As he was standing out in the orchard he noticed that the ground had many ridges which looked unnatural. This started the colonel digging. Eleven bodies were found. The search for Doctor York was over and the hunt for the Bender family began. They were never found.

George Joseph Smith of England killed but three or four women but he invented a new way to do it. He used a bathtub.

Mr. Smith was as ordinary looking as his name. He was a man of little intelligence and spent most of his life in jail because of his larcenous habits. He started his murder career in 1898 when he was twenty-seven and practiced it until 1915.

Smith had but one principle—he would never murder a woman if he could get her money in any other way. He robbed hundreds of women. He would first find out their financial status and then marry them. If his bride had ready cash, Smith would simply take it and abscond. If she had money that was tied up, a will would be drawn in his favor and her murder followed.

Smith always tried to hire a room with a bath. If no bath was available he purchased a collapsible tub. The first day he would discover that his wife looked ill. A doctor would be consulted. Mr. Smith would do most of the talking and created the impression that his wife was suffering from epilepsy or heart attacks. After the visit to the doctor his wife would take a bath. A few hours later a report would reach the police that a woman had been found dead in a bath tub. Mr. Smith would call the doctor who treated his wife and the verdict would be death by accidental drowning due to an epileptic fit or heart failure.

Once Too Often.

The bathtub method was used once too often. The police became suspicious and on searching their records found similar cases. Smith was arrested and subsequently hanged. The exact manner in which Smith caused the deaths of his wives went to the gallows with the murder. It is thought that he lifted up the legs of his victims suddenly while they were in the tub and lowered their heads under the water.

Landru, the Bluebeard of Gambais, France, did away with 11 of his mistresses in 11 years. While Smith was so parsimonious that he haggled over the price of the deadly bathtub, Landru was generous, charming and brilliant. Handsome in a dashing way, with sparkling, penetrating eyes and bushy beard, women liked him. Like Smith, Landru was interested mainly in women's money. His scheme was to ingratiate himself with her and then invite the lady to his villa at Gambais. After staying with him she would be seen no more. Suspicion pointed at Landru for many years, but nothing could be proven. He was finally arrested and although the police searched his villa and the surrounding ground, nothing was found but a queer stove and a lot of bones. Landru claimed they were chicken bones—the police said that they were the bones of his victims. A jury thought likewise and he lost his head at the guillotine February 26, 1922. Landru killed women by drugging them, cutting up the bodies and burning the pieces in a stove.

The United States has had its Bluebeard in J. P. Watson, a mild looking little man who married 21 women within a space of three years, and is said to have slain nine of them. Watson was apprehended by chance and seemed glad that his career as a wife killer was over. His object was money.

Fritz Haarmann of Hanover, Germany, was called the "vampire murderer," and performed his deeds in a revolting and brutal fashion. In 1922 Haarmann started his murders and when caught in 1927 he had murdered 27 boys and young men.

Haarmann would lure the victims to his room, hack them to pieces, and dispose of their bodies by selling the flesh to the butchers of Hanover as horse meat. Haarmann was finally caught when he tried to sell the clothes of one of his victims. He was beheaded after his capture.

Interesting Jewelery Exhibit.

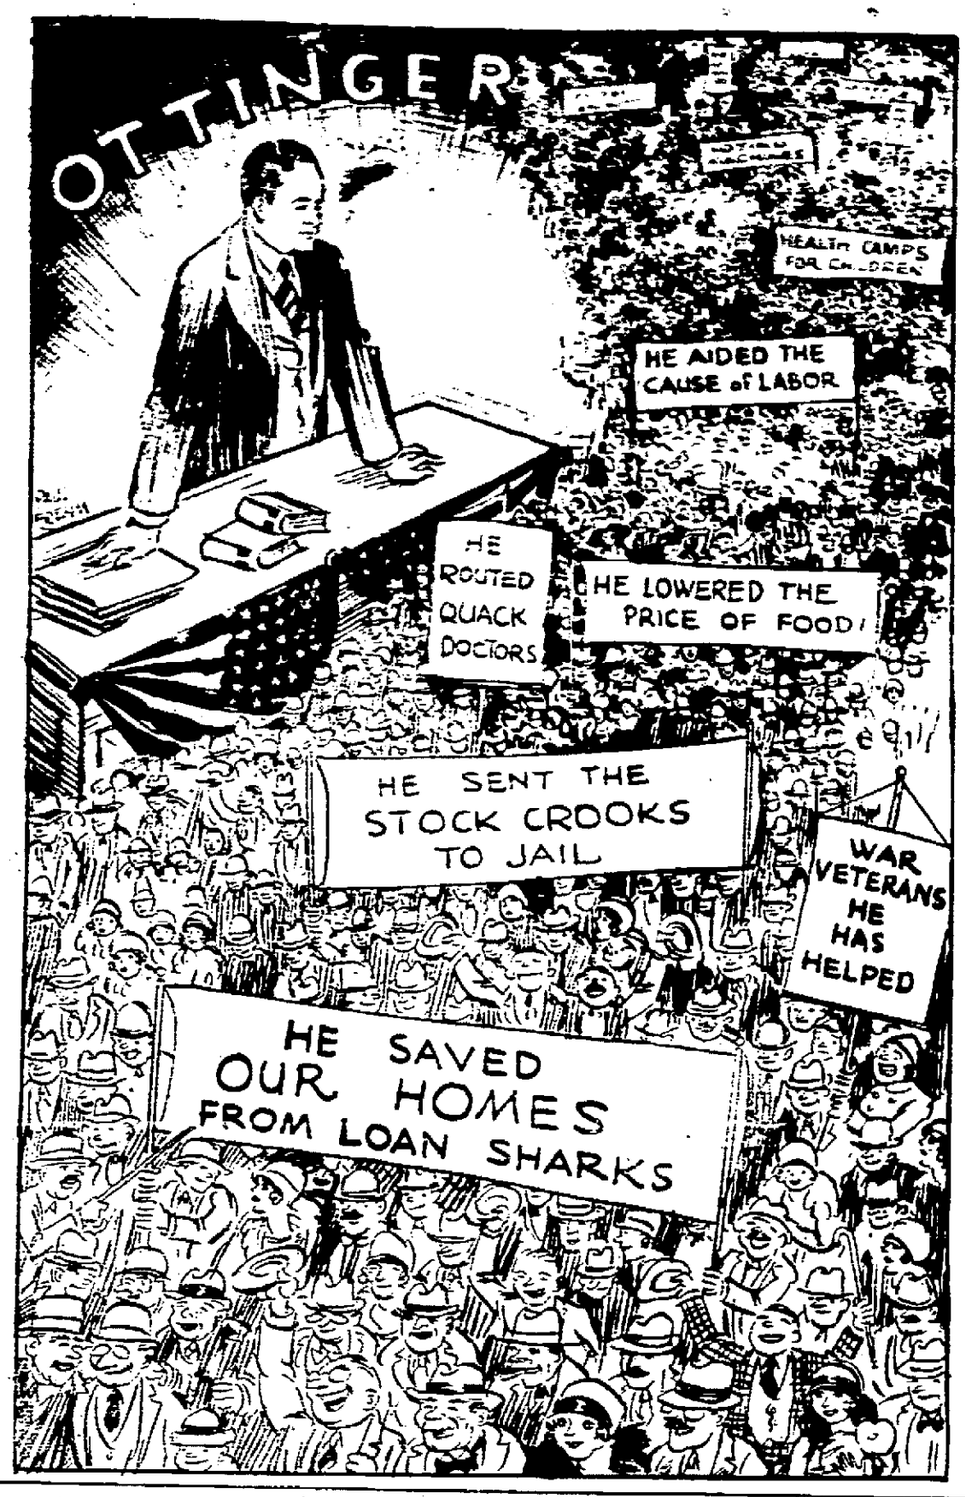

At the jewelery store of Safford & Scudder on Wall street is an exhibit of unusual interest, particularly this week when aviation apparently is in the air. A Bulova watch exhibit which represents an ocean scene with two aeroplanes apparently skimming the ever changing waves comprises the exhibit. The exhibit was designed in honor of Col. Lindbergh and Commander Byrd who on their trans-Atlantic flights were equipped with Bulova watches.

After being placed in position and the stack erected the boiler will be enclosed and used for increased capacity at the laundry.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Speculation for the advance gathered momentum in today's stock market despite the large increase in brokers' loans and unusually heavy week-end profit-taking.

Pools, encouraged by the recent easing of money rates, again pushed forward their favorites, lifting more than a score to new high records. Extreme gains in some of the high-priced issues ran from 5 to nearly 29 points.

So swift was the pace of trading that the ticker fell more than 40 minutes behind the market by early afternoon. This tended to discourage trading by speculators because of the difficulty in obtaining prompt reports on their orders and observing the trend of prices on the floor.

Montgomery Ward again led the advance, soaring 15 points to a new high record at 350. Coppers, which have been under brisk accumulation in expectation of an early increase in red metal prices, came to the fore when American Smelting was marked up 14 points to a new peak at 269. Recent rumors that the Anaconda Copper Company was contemplating making an offer for Chile copper to minority interests were denied. International Nickel ran up 13 points to a new high at 189 on unconfirmed reports that negotiations were under way today for a merger with the Monds Nickel Company, giving them a virtual world monopoly on nickel.

Call money renewed at 6½ per cent, the lowest rate since last Monday, and was in plentiful supply at that figure, despite the usual semi-weekly adjustment of banks' positions at the Federal Reserve Bank. There was no appreciable calling of loans by early afternoon.

Radio, which has been rather quiet for several weeks, suddenly stepped into the speculative spotlight by opening with a block of 10,000 shares at 200 and then moving up to a new high record at 227½, an extreme gain of 9½ points. Warner Brothers A, American International, Rossia Insurance, Warner Brothers Common, Murray Corporation, Du Pont, U. S. Tobacco and American Railways Express sold 5 to 7½ points higher.

Motors turned heavy on the publication of the third-quarter Hudson report, showing smaller earnings than in the same period last year. General Motors, which had moved up 2 points to a new high at 233⅞, lost its gain, as did Studebaker, which had attained a new peak above 87. Hudson dropped 3 points below last night's close and Briggs 2. New York Tractions and Railroad equipment shares also showed several weak spots.

Zigzag, Diagonal Weaves Feature New Sports Duds

Fall sports clothes are more distinctive than they have been for many days.

In shades of ruddy brown and rusty red, grege, dark blue, gray and beaver the designers are showing new models of zigzag and diagonal weaves. Many of the new costumes are of tricot, and some of them have long coats of plain color, lined with the same diagonal pattern jersey as the sweater and skirt in bright colors.

The line of most of the latest sports things is straight. The skirts are apt to have clusters of plaits at the front or side front, though the godet and circular skirt are also much in evidence. The sports jackets are most often finished with scarf collars or narrow upstanding collars. Many handkerchiefs in fancy wools are shown for wear with the sports ensemble.

Tricot sweaters of coarse weave are shown in flamboyant modernistic patterns, many with large diagonal lines. Diagonal stripes seem to have definitely replaced horizontal at many sport houses.

Nice Glove Adjustment at Wrist Is Necessary

The short sleeve and the sleeveless dress have had very little influence on glove style. The glove remains short, and seems to have no relation to the point where the sleeve ends. Longer slip-ons are, however, said to be making some progress in fashion for the wide flare sleeve, but with the long close-fitting sleeve there must be a nice glove adjustment at the wrist. Hence the tailored slender wrist styles.

Illustrative of the tailored trend is a beige glace glove with a self-strap that passes partially around the wrist, fastening with a fancy button and a buttonhole.

A fancy cuff glove of biscuit-colored suede shows the use of leather embroidered in slender stripes of suede on a cuff of maroon lizard.

Quite another tailored type is the gauntlet glove in tan glace kid, the gauntlet stiffened, piped and faced with brown kid. Large link buttons, leather covered, fasten through buttonholes in front and back of the cuff.

The Office Cynic, who is also the parent of three children under five, says it is probably right about there being limitless energy in the atom.

Hoover Greets Zeppelin Fliers

Captain Lehmann Acknowledges Congratulations and Says That Except for Hoover, Germans Would Have Starved After the War.

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, in receiving Dr. Hugo Eckener and others who crossed the Atlantic on the Graf Zeppelin, explained how the air service could be built up, adding that in every shortening of communication there was added solidarity between people.

Dr. Eckener told the Republican presidential candidate that this trip was the first of several trial flights he hopes to make, first, to establish confidence in lighter-than-air transportation, and second, to investigate and determine the routes necessary for the most expeditious transit.

Mr. Hoover recalled that it required many years for sailing ships of the old days to determine which were the most favorable routes at different seasons and different times and that he presumed that this was one of the necessary determinations to be made for transatlantic development of lighter than air transportation.

The nominee complimented Dr. Eckener and his crew upon "the fine courage of yourself and companions," and on the fact that Germany should be the first to make this flight since that country had been the pioneer in lighter-than-air transportation. He added that the American people welcomed the first flight of what he hoped would be a great commercial development.

Dr. Eckener was further told that in the American people he would find not only an enormous satisfaction at the success of the flight but he expressed the hope that a regular service could be built up.

Captain Ernest A. Lehmann, first officer of the Graf Zeppelin, while at the Hoover headquarters, expressed pleasure at meeting the man whom he described as "the Savior of Germany" during the post-war period.

"It is a great pleasure to be here," Captain Lehmann said. "Had it not been for Herbert Hoover and his efforts for the relief of Germany thousands and thousands of our people would have starved after the war."

Hoover received a number of other callers during the forenoon, among them Dwight W. Davis, secretary of war; William H. Crocker, national committeeman for California, and Jerome D. Landfield, formerly in charge of Russian affairs in the state department.

Remove Fordson Plant to Ireland

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19 (AP).—The principal seat of the manufacture of Fordson tractors by the Ford Motor Company will be transferred from Fordson, Mich., to the company's plant at Cork, Ireland, by next January 1, it was learned today.

While no official statement was given out, it was said at the office of the company that tractor production was not to be permanently abandoned in the United States although no tractors now are being produced here.

Officials said they did not know when a new plant would be equipped and production resumed in this country but indicated that the company is working on plans for a new model tractor.

Manufacture of the tractor at Fordson was discontinued about a year ago to allow more space for the manufacture of the new Model A Ford car.

The principal reason for the transfer, as explained by officials, is that increased demand for tractors in Europe has made increased production overseas advisable.

Approximately 80 per cent of the tractor making machinery and equipment is being removed to Cork in Ford vessels, the first of which departed several days ago. The enlarged Cork plant is to be operated on a basis of two 8-hour shifts a day, turning out approximately 300 tractors daily.

Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of Grant Cole, his wife, Gladys, and his two sisters, Cathrine Whipple and Fannie Cole.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear children,
That we do not think of you.
The fairest flowers are first to fall,
The sweetest first to fade.
The dearest, fondest, loved by all,
Within their graves are laid.
The flowers we place upon their graves
May wither and decay,
But love for them who sleep beneath
Shall never fade away.

Church Drive Gains $1,337.50

Only About 300 Subscriptions Reported to Present Time—Citizens Urged to Contribute, Adopting Deferred Payment Plan.

In spite of the bad weather conditions of Thursday, heat and rain the workers in the Colored Church here continued their interest and enthusiasm. They assembled at 8 in the Y. M. C. A. building and reported a total of $1,337.50. The leading divisions was "B" headed by William B. Martin with $265.50. The leading team was No. 17, Captain John N. Cordts, $150; the second team was No. 22, Captain Arthur Quimby, with $77; the third team, No. 1, with Captain C. J. Babcock turning in $57.

Among the individual gifts reported were the following:

Mrs. Mathilda Cordts	$150
Fuller Shirt Co.	100
W. W. Van Keuren	100
Mrs. Elizabeth L. Thompson	100
Rev. G. D. B. Hasbrouck	100
Dr. Fred Snyder	100
Rose & Gorman	100
Hon. A. H. Wicks	100

Charles Ramsey, chairman of the executive and initial gifts committees, presided at the meeting. A general discussion of the work up to the present time followed his brief address and it was generally agreed that many of the workers had not yet started on their pledges. Division leaders and team captains were urged to keep in touch with their men and cover the field.

The next meeting of the workers will be held tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. and the leaders of the campaign have sent out a special request to the workers to be present at that time. It is planned not to hold a meeting on Saturday night. The workers will have Saturday, Sunday and Monday to call on their prospects, and the next meeting will be Monday night at 8:30, when it is expected than an unusually good report will be received.

Mr. Elvidge, the campaign executive, called attention to the fact that only about three hundred subscriptions had been reported up to the present time, and that it was absolutely necessary to call on all citizens who are expecting them. William F. Martin spoke and suggested the presentation of the deferred payment plan rather than smaller cash contributions.

Young People in Good Surroundings.

Those in charge of the campaign urge every citizen to give the completion of this building very careful thought. At the present time there is no social room or headquarters for the colored youth. There is everything in Kingston for the white boys and girls, and every sort of influence for good, but nothing for the colored boys and girls. Criminologists say that most crimes, especially juvenile ones, are committed during the leisure hours. This building of the A. M. E. Zion Church will provide, in the basement, headquarters to take care of leisure hours and will furnish the right atmosphere. The local Y. M. C. A. has already offered to provide leadership in the direction of activities, and it is felt that the Y. W. C. A., the K. of C. and other local clubs will be very glad to give assistance when called upon.

This effort for the colored youth interests people of all religions. The The formation of the teams shows that to be a fact. People should give, and give liberally, not only for the social and spiritual welfare of the colored brethren, but also for the additional reason so often stressed before, that Kingston should have enough civic pride to complete the building on Franklin street. Operations have been stopped for a long time due to lack of funds. Kingston cannot afford to have it said that this building dedicated to the best influences of its colored citizens shall remain as it it. From this church for many years has radiated an influence for good that is recognized by the leadership of the committee. It is the oldest church building in Ulster county for spiritual work among the colored folks and ti is well to bear in mind that a committee of local citizens (white) suggested the erection of the structure following the fire of December, 1926. The white citizens of the community have organized this drive and their appeal is a most worthy one from every viewpoint. They feel they must finish this work for their colored brethren or, as Judge Fowler admitted, pay a greater price for failure to do so.

Marvelous Dahlias.

Ostrander & Woolsey are not only up-and-coming clothiers, but they are showing in their display window on North Front street some of the most beautiful and decidedly the largest dahlia blossoms ever grown in Kingston. They came from the garden of Mr. Ostrander and are well worth an extra walk to see.

Ford Engineer Visits Zeppelin

Giving Impetus to Rumor Henry Ford Is One of the Persons Dr. Eckener Is Attempting to Interest in His Plans.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Rumors that Henry Ford is one of the persons Dr. Hugo Eckener is attempting to interest in his plans for a transatlantic dirigible, mail and passenger service were given impetus today by the visit to the Graf Zeppelin of William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Company. Mr. Mayo, in company with several other persons whose identities were more closely guarded than his, inspected the big dirigible in the naval hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., yesterday and attended a conference with Dr. Eckener and officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin Company of Akron, Ohio.

Mr. Mayo denied any negotiations had been opened between the Zeppelin people and the Ford Company. He said it was his personal belief, however, that such a service as Dr. Eckener plans was practicable and could be put on a paying basis within a year or two.

Dr. Eckener estimates it will take at least $14,000,000 to launch his project for four great air cruisers plying between Europe and the United States.

"Is Mr. Ford interested to the extent of financing such a company?" Mr. Mayo was asked.

"You may say," he replied, "that Mr. Ford is vitally interested in any new form of transatlantic travel, and especially in this form."

Until it is definitely determined how long it will take to repair the Zeppelin, plans for the midwest tour of the Zeppelin are being held in abeyance. It is not believed that the repairs can be completed before Tuesday.

Several persons will be taken as guests on the midwest tour but whether Mr. Ford will be one of them is uncertain.

"He is a great man," Dr. Eckener said, "and I should like to have him for a passenger, but he is very busy and I don't know if he would have time to go. Besides, it is very doubtful if we can tie up at his mast in Detroit."

Hugh Allen of the Goodyear Zeppelin Company announced that he had three times as many applications for places on the return flight to Germany as he had room.

He said another trip to this country of the Zeppelin is planned this year, either late in November or early in December.

Two Found Slain In Automobile

State Police Believe Frederick Bowater Stabbed Miss Margaret Moffit and Then Shot Himself.

Danbury, Conn., Oct. 19 (AP).—The bodies of Miss Margaret Moffit, 30, with a stab wound in her chest, and Frederick Bowater, 41, of Bridgeport, were found in an automobile on a country road in the Ridgebury district, six miles from here, today. The man had died from a shotgun wound which mutilated the left side of his head. The state police believe the man killed the woman and then himself.

Identification of the man was determined by a motor vehicle operator's license issued to him last July, with address as Gaylord Farm, Wallingford. That is a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients. He left there in 1927.

Identification of Miss Moffitt was established after Miss Alice Smith of Wilton, in whose family she was a maid, informed police that the maid was missing, having left home last night with a man who had called. Later when state police examined the body it was seen that the description coincided with that of the missing woman. Police then established that she had left the Smith place in company with Bowater.

Coolidge at Civil War Battlefields

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP).—Dedication today of the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania County Battlefields' Memorial Park, in memory of the hundred and thirteen thousand lives that were lost there in the Civil War, called President Coolidge into Virginia.

He will return to the White House tonight after delivering the principal address of the dedication ceremonies. Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps, Brig. Gen. Briant H. Wells, acting chief of staff, and Senator Claude Swanson of Virginia, were invited to accompany the Chief Executive to Fredericksburg.

At Fredericksburg Mr. Coolidge expected to deliver his address from a stand on the actual battlefield and within sight of the spot where thirteen thousand casualties plied up in the course of five hours' fighting in 1862. Arrangements had been made for a parade through the streets of the city prior to the ceremonies on the battlefield.

Representative Bland was called upon to preside at the dedication ceremonies and to introduce Mr. Coolidge. Senator Swanson and Governor Byrd of Virginia were placed on the program for addresses immediately after the Chief Executive.

Congress authorized at the last session the establishment of the National Military Park to include the Battlefields of Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania, Chancellorsville, Wilderness and Salem Church.

Ottinger Tells of Plans for Workers

Buffalo, Oct. 19 (AP).—Heartened by the response of the "southern tier" and western New York to his appeal, Attorney General Albert Ottinger turned his face eastward today to Syracuse, preparatory to a swing into the north country in the closing days of his upstate gubernatorial tour.

The Republican candidate had only one speech planned, to be delivered in the evening in the Wieting opera house. At noon, however, he was to lunch with the publishers and editors of some thirty upstate newspapers and to discuss the political situation with them privately.

A Buffalo audience in Dom Polski Hall, in the center of the Polish section, heard the first speech in which Ottinger has confined himself largely to a discussion of state problems. Leaving for the time the national topics on which he spoke in Elmira, Rochester, in his briefer noontime talks in Canandaigua and Batavia and his frequent rear-platform talks to station gatherings, he devoted almost the whole of his first address last evening to his work for the benefit of the working classes and to the plans he has in that regard.

Ottinger planned to talk at Syracuse tonight about grade crossing elimination, which he believed would prove of especial interest in that section.

POULTRY

PLAN TO FATTEN HOLIDAY TURKEYS

The marketing season for turkeys is from about the middle of November to the last of December.

Confining turkeys during the fattening season has not proved successful. They will eat heartily for two or three days, but after this they will lose their appetite and begin to lose flesh rapidly. Naturally, they are wild birds and thrive only when they have access to open range. During the summer and fall they find an abundance of food on the average farm; however, it is advisable to give them a small feed at night for the purpose of bringing them home to roost. Grasshoppers and other insects, weeds and grass seeds, green vegetation, berries and grain picked up in the fields and about go to make up the turkey's daily ration, and when all these are plentiful they are in splendid condition when the fattening season arrives.

A satisfactory plan for fattening is to begin by feeding small grain night and morning, not enough at a time but that the birds will walk away still a little hungry, and gradually increase the quantity, adding some corn, until they are given all they will eat three times a day. Along at the close of the fattening season corn, supplemented with fresh sour milk, may constitute the full ration. New corn may be fed safely provided the turkeys are gradually accustomed to it, otherwise scours may result.

Various kinds of nuts are a natural fattening feed picked up by turkeys on the range. In parts of Texas many growers, properly situated, depend solely on acorns for fattening their turkeys, and when the mast is plentiful the birds are marketed in fairly good condition.

Use Lights in Poultry House During Winter

A series of cautions for the user of lights in the poultry house is found in the Ohio state poultry calendar. They are as follows:

Grade and pen pullets according to age, condition, and laying qualities, so that each group may be properly handled.

Excessive fall production makes it hard to keep the flock in heavy production during the winter.

Don't use lights to produce more than a 14-hour day. Excessive use of lights means overproduction, followed by a slump.

To avoid a spring molt, discontinue lights slowly in the spring.

Use lights on breeders only after January 1 to 15, in order to help them back into production.

Don't crowd production over 60 per cent, otherwise the flock will become thin and molt.

Be regular in management and use of lights.

Feed grain liberally when using lights.

Always have feed and water available when lights are on.

Do not turn lights off too early in the spring.

Do not stop feeding early and late in the day when lights are finally eliminated.

Early Layers Usually Heavy Egg Producers

Pullets that begin to lay early usually are the heaviest producers in the flock and for this reason it is an excellent practice to mark them so that they can be given due consideration for their performance next year when it comes time to cull the flock, it is pointed out by L. E. Card, of the University of Illinois. Pullets that are extremely late in starting to lay are always certain to be the least desirable birds to use as breeders. In breeding for higher egg production, individuals of this type should be kept out of the breeding pens.

If the early-laying pullets are banded with numbered leg bands, all that is necessary is to make a record of the individual band numbers and the approximate date on which egg laying starts. Another equally satisfactory scheme is to use colored leg bands, in which case a different colored band should be used to mark the pullets that start laying in the different months.

Laying Hen Sings

A laying hen is usually a singing hen and happiness is encouraged by plenty of good oat or wheat straw on the floor. Practical poultrymen differ as to the respective merits of wheat, rye, and oat straw for litter. Each has been used without any noticeable differences as to wearing and sanitary qualities. Rye straw is somewhat stiff and oat straw breaks rather readily. The best advice is to use what is convenient and keep the house in good sanitary condition.

Same Old Human Nature

Times haven't changed much. Several thousand years ago an old gentleman named Aristotle said: "That which is common to the greatest number has the least attention bestowed upon it. Every one thinks chiefly of his own interest, hardly ever of the public interest.—Atchison Globe.

Several of Mr. Williams's acquaintances have been invited and a local committee has been placed in charge. Mrs. Evelyn Crowell of Teaneck, who assisted in the sale with W. L. Burnett of Newburgh, has charge of the making of plans for next Sunday and has appointed a local committee, President Walter P. The representatives of the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston are also invited to be on the grounds on Sunday.

Mr. Williams expects to build a large club house between the two lakes and is to change the name of the fifth Binnewater to the name of "Lake Williams". The number of acres purchased by Mr. Williams is approximately 1,000.

CHINAMAN, SAID TO BE 250 YEARS OLD, WED 14 TIMES

Patriarch Is Still Young and Vigorous in Spirit and Physically Strong.

Tientsin.—A man who is declared to be two hundred and fifty years old and in spite of his years young and vigorous in spirit and physically strong has just been discovered in the little village of Shangchuan, just north of Wanhsien, in the province of Szechuan, China.

Li Ching-yun is the name of this strange individual who is said to have been born in the 17th year of the reign of the Emperor Kang Hsi, one of the first of the Manchu dynasty. Many who have seen him recently declare that his facial appearance is no different from that of many who are two centuries his junior.

Li is a native of Ching-an. He has traveled extensively, and everywhere he goes he is welcomed by the people. Many military and civil officials have also conferred honors and presents upon him.

It is said that when he was only a few years old he could read and write, and that by the time he had reached his tenth year he had traveled throughout Kansu, Shansi, Sinkiang, Tibet, Annam, Manchuria and Siam gathering medical herbs. This continued to be his trade until he was one hundred years old. Since that time he has been traveling all over China selling medicine for a living. He says he makes it a practice to walk every day at least 100 li, a little more than 30 English miles.

Li has been married 14 times, and at present has 11 generations of descendants. His children, grandchildren and so on down the line number in all 180 persons. His eyesight is still good, and the finger nails of his right hand are very long.

Mongolian Blue Spot Links Two Human Races

New York.—A trace which still exists of the time when American red Indians and Mongolian yellow peoples came possibly of the same parent race was described before the International Congress of Americanists here.

Frederick L. Hoffman of Wellesley, Mass., described this race as the "Mongolian blue spot." This is a mark which sometimes appears upon babies of Mongolian stock, and which disappears a few months after birth. Mr. Hoffman said he had seen this spot upon 50 babies of the American Navaho Indians in the Southwest. He told also of having observed it among South American Indians and said: "Nowhere is this Mongol origin more apparent than among certain tribes of South America."

Mr. Hoffman predicted success for an attempt begun this summer to use finger printing to take an accurate census of the Navaho Indians, about whose numbers in their southwestern United States reservation there has always been doubt.

4 Dollar Car Saves Owner 5 Dollar Fine

New York.—The faith of Benjamin Mackofsky in his ability to operate his $4 motor car won him a suspended sentence recently before Magistrate Glatzmayer in Traffic court. He was charged with parking his car beyond the time limit.

"Well, the smallest fine I can impose is $5," said the magistrate after Mackofsky had pleaded guilty.

"Well," he replied Mackofsky, "I'd rather have the car."

"Why?" queried the magistrate. "How much did you pay for it?"

"Four dollars, your honor."

"You don't mean to say it runs?"

Sure, it runs fine. It's a 1920 model."

"If it's only worth $4 it's useless to the court," said the magistrate. "I admire you for your nerve in trying to make it run. I'll give you a suspended sentence."

New Words Absorbed by Primitive Tongues

New York.—How a primitive language absorbs modern words, such as "garter," was described before the International Congress of Americanists by Rev. Bernard Haile, of Santa Fe, N. M. He presented a paper on "Navaho Indian Verbal Stems."

He illustrated with the word "beestl'o," meaning "it is tied." The last three letters of this word represent a Navaho stem which appears in nouns for grass and for cord. Therefore in using the word the Navaho always refers to a cord of some sort, regardless of material.

So the Navaho extends the stem to express numerous forms of "tieing," such as wearing a charm tied in the hair, hitching an animal, wearing garters, or bailing hay by hand and machine.

Cause for Worry

Mrs. Grant had given her ten-year-old neighbor, Joe, some fresh-baked, home-made cookies, deliciously dusted with granulated sugar. Joe evidently had experienced some difficulties in the past with the efficient eating of every crumb of such dainties, for he turned to his mother with an anxious air and queried: "Mamma, is this sugar stationary?"

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The continued warm weather has undoubtedly curtailed the demand for white cabbage and in consequence the market today was dull and weaker. At railroad terminals in Greater New York, bulk Danish cabbage peddled out on the basis of $35-$40 per ton.

The October forecast of production of Danish-type cabbage is only 274,000 tons in seven important producing states. This is about 24,000 tons below the first estimate. Most of the reduction was in New York state, where only 165,200 tons are now expected, as against 247,500 last season. Dry weather has damaged the New York crop. Wisconsin, however, has just about the same quantity as in 1927.

Fancy large Bartlett pears met a moderate sale. Values averaged slightly higher in a trifle firmer market. Several carloads from western New York changed hands at $2.50-$3 per bushel basket.

Little activity was noted in the market for upstate New York beets or carrots. Supplies were moderate but the demand limited. Wholesale business on 100 pound sacks of cut round beets was at $2.25 and carrots $2.50-$2.75.

The market situation on apples was without any noticeable improvement on fair and ordinary quality fruit. Strictly fancy, well colored McIntosh's and large Greenings were in demand.

On October 1, the cold storage holdings on apples throughout the entire United States were nearly 40 per cent greater than a year ago and one-third heavier that the five-year average.

Price changes were few and small on state lettuce. Arrivals were light and trading fair. Crates of 24 heads of Big Boston peddled out as high as $2 and as low as 50 cents. Western Iceberg brought $4-$5.50 per crate.

The undertone of the local market was sluggish on celery. Supplies were moderate but the demand was light. Celery in the rough, packed in two-thirds crates, jobbed out at $2.25-$3, occasionally $3.25 on the good to extra fancy and from $1-$2 on the poor to ordinary.

The early reports from Florida indicate a 15 per cent increase of celery plantings in that state. A revised estimate shows a production of 2,677,000 crates of celery in seven late important producing states, or 700,000 less than last season. Michigan has about 710,000 crates and New York 1,300,000.

EIGHTH VICTIM OF TYPHOID AT OLEAN

Olean, N. Y., Oct. 19 (AP).—With the death early today of a ten year old girl, the list of victims of an epidemic of typhoid fever mounted to eight.

The latest victim of the outbreak, which has been sweeping this city for three weeks, was Jean Mountain. Two others died yesterday.

Up to October 13, there had been three deaths and 164 cases have been recorded with the State Department of Health.

The cause of the outbreak has been traced to a break in the submerged pipe running from one of the South Olean wells, an auxiliary supply, to the pumping station which allowed raw water to be pumped into the mains, the amount of chlorine added being insufficient to protect against this gross pollution.

The use of the South Olean supply was discontinued on September 13, and the purity of the regular city supply safeguarded.

On the recommendation of a committee consisting of prominent business and professional men of Olean the city council recently appropriated $25,000 to meet the cost of emergency supplies and relief and passed a resolution requesting the state commissioner of health to make an investigation into the conditions which led to the outbreak. The state epidemiologist and a sanitary engineer from the department are now on the ground with instructions to remain until all necessary facts relating to the conditions which allowed polluted water to enter the mains without sufficient chlorination have been discovered.
